

Italian Warplanes Speed Up Raids; Salonika Hardest Hit

Fifty Bombs Are Dropped Upon Patras

Athens, Greece.—(AP)—The Italian air force resumed its attacks against Greece today, bombing Corfu, on the island of Corfu, and the port of Patras, where about ten casualties were caused.

About fifty bombs were dropped in the latest attack on Patras. In another raid directed against Perama, on the island of Mytilene near the Turkish coast, all bombs were reported to have missed their targets.

Athens also had an air-raid alarm of 20 minutes, but its watchers sighted no planes.

These attacks followed widespread raids in which the government said nearly 300 were killed and wounded yesterday.

Salonika, attacked heavily yesterday, had another air-raid alarm today, but no bombs were dropped and the Italian planes apparently were driven off.

Go To Shelters

Many residents of Salonika spent last night in shelters.

The strategic city of Salonika was reported hardest hit in the sudden burst of aerial warfare, with 59 killed and 84 injured in four raids yesterday. The government said "generally, no military target was hit" and charged that "all the raids were directed against civilian."

Fourteen persons were killed and 10 wounded at Larisa, while eight were killed and 67 injured in five raids on Corfu, where a community said the Jewish quarter, an Italian school and clinics were bombed. A Catholic church was said to have been hit at Salonika.

Other cities which felt the might of the fascist air arm were the cities of Athens, Piraeus, the port of Athens, Corinth, Metsovo, Megara, Kastoria, Thessalonika, Patras, and Retimo, Crete.

Over the Epirus district in the northwest the Italians dropped pamphlets declaring the invaders had "good dispositions" toward the Greeks and would respect their women, traditions and customs.

The tiny Greek air force pitched in to aid the nation's hard-fighting ground forces, bombing and strafing fascist troops wherever they could find them in the wild, mountainous area along the Greek-Albanian border.

Exchange Telegraph, Britain's agency, said Greek planes had attacked two Italian airbases at Berat, Albania, destroying one and damaging the other. The report added that Greek troops, fighting in close quarters with cold steel, had occupied a strategic high dominating Koriza.

In all sectors of the front where they have not actually succeeded in pushing the Italians back, the Greeks said, the defenders were holding firm.

The fascist air offensive apparently operated from two sides of Greece—from Albania and from the Dodecanese islands in the eastern Mediterranean, which foreign observers believed might be an objective in the near future of the British fleet.

Italian Report

Rome.—(AP)—The bombing of Salonika, Greek naval base, upon which Italy yesterday centered her aerial offensive, was carried out by the famed Desperata squadron which was led by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano in Ethiopia, the official news agency, Stefani, said today.

Count Ciano himself previously has been reported preparing to go to Albania, whence the Italian drive in Greece is being directed.

The fascist forces dropped "many tons of explosives" on military and naval objectives which were "completely destroyed," the agency said. "In the fortified zone, supply dumps, reservoirs and barracks were hit," the dispatch said. "Numerous fires broke out amid considerable devastation."

The agency's correspondent said the Greek anti-aircraft fire was violent and that Greek chaser planes attacked as the Italians headed back toward their base.

The high command said the Italian troops were gradually forcing their way through difficult territory toward Ioannina (Janina) in the Kalamas valley, which is heavily fortified.

London.—(AP)—Authoritative British military sources say they expect Italy to launch a big-scale offensive against the Greek defense line on the southwest wing of the Albanian-Greek frontier battle line.

The Italians were reported to be moving up artillery along this coastal flank.

These sources said the fighting, after almost a week, still is a "battle of outposts."

Voters Refuse to Cast Ballots in Defunct Bank

Fayette City, Pa.—(AP)—Some 50 persons asked the Fayette county court to prevent transfer of next Tuesday's polling place from the borough building to quarters once occupied by a bank.

"A lot of people lost money in the bank and they won't go near it again—not even to vote," said Pat F. Hynes, one of the petitioners.

Norwegians Said to Have Captured 50 in Thrust at Greenland

New York.—(AP)—A German-language broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation today said a German expedition of 50 men had been captured in an unsuccessful attempt to seize the meteorological observation station at Greenland.

The Norwegian patrol boat Fritjof Nansen made them prisoners, it said. The broadcast was heard by CBS in New York.

After Germany occupied Denmark, the mother country, the United States established a consular office there. The 736,518-mile square island is in the western hemisphere.

The broadcast, quoting a report from Stockholm, Sweden, said "for a long time the German air force has been experiencing the lack of exact weather forecasts, hindering successful air operations because Berlin did not get much support from the Danish and Norwegian personnel of the weather bureau at Greenland."

"Therefore it decided upon the capture of the wireless station in Greenland, or the erection of a new station under German control."

"An armed German expedition left Norway for Greenland, but was intercepted by the Fritjof Nansen when it reached the ice zone. The Germans are said to have offered no resistance."

Weather bureau officials in New York said Greenland had six to 10 observation posts and that before the war six were heard regularly in this country.

A German weather station in Greenland would enable the nazis to forecast weather there to four days in advance, officials said.

Madison Police Use Tear Gas To Break Up Homecoming Crowd

Madison.—(AP)—Tear gas barrages were used by police last night to break up a University of Wisconsin homecoming demonstration during which an estimated 8,000 persons created bedlam for two hours on State street and Capitol square.

Thirty-four persons were taken into custody but most of them later were released. Thirteen university and high school students were ordered to report in superior court today on charges of disorderly conduct and vandalism.

The crowd followed an old homecoming custom by attempting to storm two theaters on State street but found the entrances guarded by squads of patrolmen.

When traffic had been hopelessly tied up, Captain H. J. Morris drove through the throng in a squad car, warning over a loudspeaker that the police were ready to use tear gas bombs. The crowd refused to budge until the first bomb fell, then scattered in all directions, but more than two dozen gas bombs and shells were thrown before the demonstration was broken up.

Meanwhile parked cars had been rolled into the streets, but passengers were rocked almost out of their seats and eggs and vegetables were hurled at policemen.

Grand Rapids Bishop Resigns

Catholic Diocesan Head Retires Because Of Age, Ill Health

Grand Rapids, Mich.—(AP)—The Roman Catholic diocese of Grand Rapids announced last night the resignation of Bishop Joseph Gabriel Pinton, diocesan head here since 1926 and formerly bishop at Superior, Wis.

Bishop Pinton resigned, clergy associates said, because of ill health advanced age—he is 73.

The Rev. Robert W. Bogg, diocesan chancellor, said Pope Pius XII had accepted the resignation.

During the vacancy, the Most Rev. Joseph H. Albers, bishop of Lansing, will serve as apostolic administrator.

Bishop Pinton, ordained at Rome, Nov. 1, 1890, observed the 50th anniversary of his ordination yesterday.

In 1922, Pope Benedict XV made his bishop. Previously Rev. Pinton served pastorates in Detroit, Lansing, Iron Mountain and Marquette, Mich.

He came to Grand Rapids to succeed the late Bishop Edward D. Kelly.

Frustrated in its attempt to "crash" the theaters the rioters invaded two hotels and were reported to have caused considerable damage.

Police Chief William H. McCormick said he had never encountered a mob so stubborn.

The chief had to report for work today without his topcoat. He had been hit with eggs which he described as "not very fresh."

Traffic officers finally cleared the streets by roaring back and forth on motorcycles while other policemen, with night sticks and tear gas guns, pushed the crowd along on the sidewalk.

The demonstration was the climax of an otherwise peaceful gathering which started on the lower campus where some 20,000 persons assembled for a pep rally in advance of today's football game with Illinois.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher and acting Captain John Tennant, who threw the touchdown pass that defeated Purdue last week, were principal speakers at the rally.

After the sparks of the homecoming bonfire had died down those who remained on the campus began the march up State street.

Third Person Is Dead as Result Of Car Accident

Woman, 65, Dies After Crash Which Claimed Her Husband, Sister

Mrs. Emil Klein, 65, 1203 W. Lawrence street, died at 6:45 this morning of injuries suffered in a car-truck accident Thursday which claimed the lives of her husband, 64, and her sister, Mrs. A. J. Kramhold, 59, 728 W. Fourth street.

Mr. Klein died shortly after his car and a truck driven by Alfred Scheid, 38, Milwaukee, crashed at the intersection of Highways 41 and 47 north of Appleton about 12:30 Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Kramhold, one of three women in the car, died yesterday of injuries. The other occupant of the car, Mrs. Anna Maurer, 57, who also was injured seriously, is on the way to recovery.

The latest traffic fatality brings the number in Outagamie county thus far this year to 23, an all-time high. An inquest will be held in the three deaths.

Mrs. Otto Glander, 35, 226 W. Foster street, and her 17-month-old child, Marlin, were slightly injured in an accident involving a car driven by Sheldon Wiesler, 15, route 1, Appleton, in the 400 block on W. College avenue about 3:40 yesterday afternoon. Wiesler was traveling west and the woman was crossing south with the child in her arms when the accident occurred. Both were bruised.

had to take shelter in doorways until a lull permitted them to seek safer quarters or hurry home. At one time early in the attack a British plane was caught in searchlights and held there for a minute or so of harrowing fire, but apparently escaped. The official communique made no mention of any plane being shot down.

London.—(AP)—A bomb struck a crowded bus and probably killed several persons in a night raid on London, it was reported today as Britain's fighters beat off three day attacks on the capital.

The raiders were pounced upon and scattered by patrols of British Spitfires which swooped from high cloud ambushes along the southeast coast.

The air ministry reported seven raiders shot down before noon, in addition to five downed by anti-aircraft gunners overnight. The Spitfires were said to have dived to the attack along the coast from a height of nearly 30,000 feet.

Italian planes reported among the raiders were described as fighters. In the past many of the Italian planes taking part in the battle of Britain have been bombers with German fighter escorts.

In the last 12 weeks the Germans have lost three planes and 14 airmen for every British plane and airmen lost, the air ministry news service said today and put recent losses at 2,433 bombers and fighters since Aug. 8.

Attacks Weaken
The Germans' fighter and bomber losses have been about equal, it said.

"If we allow the usual number of pilots, observers and gunners to the various types destroyed, over 8,000 German airmen have been killed or taken prisoners, the service said.

"The fighter command has lost only 333 pilots. The weekly figures reveal a gradual weakening of German effort in spite of continuously changed tactics."

Apparently one German bomber crew was wiped out in the crash of its plane last night in a north

Willkie and FDR In Final Appeals

Says Roosevelt Trying To 'Divide Our People'

Aboard Willkie train in New Jersey.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie declared today that President Roosevelt's Brooklyn speech was designed to "stir up class hatred and divide our people," an aim he described as "the tactic of Lenin, the strategy of Hitler and the preaching of Trotsky."

The Republican presidential nominee, resting before his final campaign appearance tonight at Madison Square Garden, New York, issued a statement calling Mr. Roosevelt's address his "fourth defense speech—defense of his own administration."

Saying his opponent "complains that the Republican ticket has the support of many different elements of our populations," Willkie continued:

"The answer to that is obvious. It is because our party is today the only one which offers unity to the country."

"The whole purpose of the third-term candidate's speech was to stir up class hatred and divide our people. That was the tactic of Lenin, the strategy of Hitler and the preaching of Trotsky."

Hears Roosevelt Speech
Willkie heard the president's speech by radio on his campaign train, parked on a siding at Manhattan transfer, N. Y., only a few miles from New York.

Just before Mr. Roosevelt went on the air, Willkie broadcast from his private car a talk contending that "neglect and abuse" of the aviation industry by the New Deal would prevent American factories from producing 50,000 planes annually "for a period of years."

Similarly, he contended, it will take years to fill orders for British planes in the United States.

"We must arm Britain with planes, not disarm her with political speeches," he said.

In his statement today, the Republican nominee said Mr. Roosevelt "attempted to defend his record of continually unbalanced budgets and astronomical expenditures by citing the abnormally low interest rate at which some government notes recently were sold."

He called the argument shallow, saying New Deal policies "have so limited the opportunities for investments in private enterprise that money has been driven 'into the bomb-proof shelters of tax-exempt government bonds.'"

Declaring the president "pretended" that his policies had aided small business men, Willkie said:

"This is completely false. As a matter of fact, small business has suffered under the New Deal far more than big business." He said treasury figures in 1937 "the best year we had under the New Deal"—listed profits for only 33 per cent of small corporations, whereas 66 per cent of big corporations showed a profit.

Record Vote Is Indicated In Wisconsin
Over 1,300,000 Badgers May Go To Polls Tuesday

Madison.—(AP)—Reports of increased registrations in the voting precincts and other signs offer the chance of a record vote in the Wisconsin general election Tuesday.

Barring unfavorable weather more than 1,300,000 may turn out to decide where this state stands on the question of a third term for President Roosevelt, on the reelection of Progressive Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., and on continuation of Governor Julius P. Heil's Republican regime in the statehouse.

The 1936 general election, which gave President Roosevelt Wisconsin's 12 electoral votes by an overwhelming majority, produced a total of 1,258,560 ballots. Since that time there has been an increase in voting interest, as evidenced by an upward trend in the primary this year.

The election will determine whether the LaFollette family record of 34 years in the senate is to be broken. Robert LaFollette, Jr., has been a member of the senate for 15 years, having succeeded his father, the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., in 1925.

The Progressive campaign, which has been tied in closely with that of the New Deal, will be climaxed Monday night with a rally in Madison, a Progressive stronghold. LaFollette and the party candidate for governor, Orland S. Loomis, of Mauston, will be the principal speakers.

At the same time the Republican standard bearers, Governor Heil and Fred Clausen, Horicon manufacturer and senatorial nominee, will wind up their campaigns in Milwaukee county, which the Republicans carried by some 30,000 votes two years ago.

Contestants on the Democratic ticket are former Attorney General James E. Finnegan of Milwaukee, candidate for senator, and Francis E. McGovern of Milwaukee, who aspires for the governorship, a position he filled as a Republican from 1911 to 1915.

Republican strength in many populous districts, but figure they have a fighting chance, particularly with respect to Senator LaFollette. Progressives during their 40 year history have acquired the habit of fighting elections vigorously, regardless of victory or defeat.

Democrats are again the forlorn orphans of the maneuverings of New Dealers and Wisconsin Progressives. With incomplete tickets, with scanty campaign resources and discouraging rebuffs from their own national headquarters, dependency rules in that political quarter.

Wisconsin elections are always hard to forecast, and few prophets are essaying the task today.

London.—(AP)—Authorized sources said today that a speech by President Ismet Inonu of Turkey yesterday was welcomed warmly in official British circles, which "noted with profound satisfaction" the reaffirmation of Turkey's alliance with England.

Inonu said Turkey would follow Soviet Russia's lead and stay out of the war for the present, but "we remain loyal to our friendships; our obligations and ties of collaboration are unshakable."

Willkie Win Is Predicted by David Lawrence

Bases Forecast on 'Ratio of Doubt' From Questionnaire

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — This is the seventh time I have endeavored to forecast a presidential election. Six times the formula on which I have based the prediction has been proved right. It is offered again today in a surprisingly close election with a decided trend for Willkie, but which may turn out to be far from close.

Lawrence

The important thing to establish is "who will be the next president of the United States?" The exact number of electoral votes is relatively unimportant and is quickly forgotten. The average reader wants to know definitely who will be the victor and on what the forecaster's judgment is based.

To begin with, bias and prejudice have no place in any prediction. In my experience, I have predicted elections in which I myself did not favor the election of the candidate who proved to be successful. In 1916, I picked Wilson and wanted to see him win, but in 1920 I was for Cox but picked Harding. In 1924, I was for Davis, but picked Coolidge. So in 1928, I favored Smith but picked Hoover. In both 1932 and 1936, I did not favor Mr. Roosevelt's election, but in each case the formula which I presented pointed to his election.

So it is well to eliminate all thought of bias in reference to a presidential forecast, because it is not pleasing to be proved wrong the day after election.

The theory that I have employed in the past six presidential elections embraces what I call the "ratio of doubt." The actual electoral table may turn out far different, and it did in nearly all cases of the last six except 1916 when it happened to coincide. But the purpose of my table is to prove that the successful candidate will be insofar as information available from what I believe to be trustworthy sources can establish anything in advance of an actual result.

Questionnaire
In forming my judgment, I have had the benefit of a confidential questionnaire sent out to editors of nearly 1,300 newspapers outside the solid south. Nearly 1,100 replies were received and many of these were accompanied by personal comments of the editors, giving the reasons for their predictions.

I checked also with other sources of information in various states and with persons in a position to know something of the appraisal made by Republican as well as Democratic leaders in particularly important states.

The sum total of this information leads me to make the following table.

Willkie Trend
All of these states in the official column have shown a marked Willkie trend and it would be a bit surprising if the Republican nominee captured every one of them. But, on the other hand, the enormous Democratic majorities of 1936 have to be overturned and this means that the defection among the Democrats in the third-term issue must be considerably more than has appeared on the surface.

Approaching the doubtful group it is apparent that the president must carry either New York or Ohio and five of the other states in the group besides. This is a task which would seem probable if there were any recent drift in that direction. But the trend is the other way.

Mr. Willkie, on the other hand, has the edge in Connecticut, Idaho, Wyoming and Missouri, which account for 30 votes, and he definitely has a better chance of carrying Ohio

Inonu's Speech Gives Hitler Little Solace

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York — (AP) — The guarded statement of Turkey's war position by her president, General Ismet Inonu, yesterday leaves considerable to the imagination but of one significant point there can be no doubt — he reaffirmed the Anglo-Turkish alliance despite the axis threat to the Near East, and Russia's non-committal attitude.

The only balm in that Gilead for nazidom would seem to be that Herr Hitler is making the Turks move with great caution. The fact that an elephant treads softly, however, doesn't mean that he lacks determination or strength.

It is a characteristic of the Oriental mind that it conceals more than it reveals. Still, on the whole Turkey's famous warrior-statesman gave us a fair picture of the situation—if we read between the lines a bit. Without attaching responsibility to the general for the conclusions, I should say that the position boils down to this:

Turkey is continuing her heavily armed attitude of watchful-waiting. She is prepared to fight at the drop of the hat if attacked, and might be expected to do the same if her interests were gravely threatened.

To a large extent Turkey must be guided by the wishes of Stalin of Moscow, who has his boot firmly with its 26 votes than Mr. Roosevelt has, so that we have here a bloc of 56 votes. This brings Mr. Willkie's total to 252 and since New York's 47 are seemingly more likely to be in the Willkie than the Roosevelt column, the Republican nominee would have 299 or well in excess of the needed 266.

There are other states which might be called "reserves" for Willkie. Maryland 8, Washington 8, and New Jersey 16, and even California 22, constitute a bloc of 54 votes that are causing the New Deal high command sleepless nights and may ultimately be found in large part, in the Willkie column, offsetting a possible loss of New York or Pennsylvania or Ohio, but not any two of them.

The "ratio of doubt" formula leads me to conclude that Wendell Willkie will win the election by a minimum of 278 and a maximum of 335.

inserted in the Turkish doorway. The Muscovite sphinx, whose support is being sought by both Germany and Britain, is smart enough not to rush in where devils fear to tread, and is playing both ends against the middle until he figures out the best course. Naturally he doesn't want the Turks building a bonfire on his front doorstep.

I would emphasize Inonu's statement that Turkey's "relations with Russia which have gone through a critical period, now have taken a friendly turn."

Now that is of great significance when viewed in conjunction with the announced determination of the Turks to fight if Messrs. Mussolini and Hitler carry out their tacit threat to try to force the Dardanelles and drive through Turkey into the Near East in an effort to capture the Suez canal. This would immediately bring Britain to the aid of her Turkish ally.

This all seems to me to mean that Russia, while holding the Turks in leash, has approved the declaration to resist aggression, and also is encouraging friendly relations between Turkey and England. This fits in perfectly with the Soviet's own attitude towards England which very recently has changed from open unfriendliness to amicability.

Keeps Hands Off
So far as concerns the fascist assault on Greece, Turkey is keeping hands off although remaining in consultation with both Britain and Athens. The Greeks themselves have advised Inonu that they can handle the situation without Turkish aid at present, thereby localizing the new war.

Meanwhile Ankara is keeping an eagle-eye on Bulgaria, which wants a corridor through Greek Thrace to the Aegean sea. Should the Bulgarians make a move to seize this, the Turks presumably would intervene to help Greece.

The Balkans are in such an inflammable state that it would need only some such move to precipitate a general upheaval. I believe that Herr Hitler himself wishes to avoid that at present—certainly until his axis partner has conquered Greece and consolidated his position there.

Russia Stalling
Hitler is reported to be increasing his efforts to swing Russia into line—that is, to persuade Moscow either to join the axis or to keep hands off and allow the Berlin-Rome partnership to drive into the Near East.

Same Name and Same Address of Draftees Complicates Matters

Milwaukee — (AP) — Two Sol Gollins, both living at the same address, complicated matters at second ward draft headquarters yesterday.

To avoid future confusion, board members wrote on the card of Sol Gollin No. 1 "scar on right leg and tip of nose."

On the card of Sol Gollin No. 2 they wrote "scar on left eye, born in Russia."

No. 1, brother-in-law of No. 2, was born in Milwaukee.

Russia apparently is trying to stall off the projected axis offensive in the hope that Britain may be able to weaken the axis powers and thus create a more favorable position for the Soviet and Turkey.

I don't know whether Herr Hitler believes in omens, but today is an anniversary to which he may be giving some thought. Twenty-five years ago the Turks destroyed the allied trenches at Gallipoli in hard fighting which ultimately resulted in the disastrous collapse of the Anglo-French attempt to force the Dardanelles. This strait is one of the hardest nuts in the world to crack, and one which would make any military leader pause, no matter how strong.

Wickard Talks At Eau Claire

Tells State Equity AAA Farm Program Brought Big Returns

Eau Claire — (AP) — The administration's triple-A farm program has put $10 in the farmer's pocket for every $6 he received before, Secretary of Agriculture Claude B. Wickard told the annual convention of the Wisconsin Farmers' Equity Union last night.

"Farm foreclosures have been cut almost in half," he said. "You are buying twice as much electric power, twice as much fertilizer. You're not only selling more milk but you're getting a higher price for it. All of this is no accident. It came about because the farmers of the nation made themselves heard in Washington."

Wickard praised the farmers "for the wonderful job you are doing here in Wisconsin," and continued: "No state in the middle west has a finer record on the score of conservation than Wisconsin. Only five states in the entire country surpass Wisconsin in the acreage of legumes and grasses seeded."

The national defense commission found agriculture "about the best prepared industry in the nation," Wickard said.

"Enough corn is on hand to guarantee the supply of pork and beef through any conceivable emergency; enough wheat is on hand to guarantee an abundance of bread as the nation prepares for defense," he asserted.

"The farm program of the United States has given the world a convincing demonstration that democracy—the United effort of 6,800,000 farmers—will work."

British Think Nazis Weakening In Aerial Attacks on England

A "gradual weakening of German effort" in the aerial siege of Britain was claimed today by the British air ministry news service even while other sources forecast a mechanized offensive by Italy on the Greek war front.

Authorized military sources in London said fascists were moving mechanized equipment—tanks, armored cars and artillery—through Albania toward the western coastal zone of Greece and they expected a big-scale drive to follow the "battle of outposts" under way since Monday.

Greek and Italian warplanes exchanged blows; Berlin and London were jarred overnight by the crash of exploding bombs.

The British air ministry news service, in a summary, placed night plane losses at 2,433, since the intensive air-raids on Britain started Aug. 8—an average of slightly more than 200 planes a week for 12 weeks.

The air ministry estimated more than 6,000 German airmen had been killed or taken prisoner in that period, and declared that German losses in bombers and fighters were about three planes and 14 airmen for every British plane and man lost. British pilot losses were placed at 353.

The ministry announced new and more destructive raids on railway communications in Berlin and on oil and other industrial plants, including the Krupp munition works in Essen.

The nazis, aided by Italian planes, were equally busy, striking toward London today in the face of strong opposition from ground batteries and squadrons of British fighting ships. Nazi planes and long-range guns on the French coast bombarded a British convoy, apparently without much success.

Other planes streaked towards London which had three alarms by noon. Most of the planes were repelled.

On the Greek battlefield, fascist troops were reported by the Italian high command to be fighting their way towards Ioannina (Janina) in the Kalamas valley and on the heights of Pindo.

The Greek government said that 300 civilians had been killed or wounded in widespread raids by the Italian air force.

Fierce Greek bayonet charges were reported to have cut a wedge into Albania on the upper wing of the frontier fighting front a third as deep as the distance the Italians claim to have advanced on the lower flank in almost a week of attack.

The British Exchange Telegraph agency reported from Athens that the Greek charges carried the mod-

Fears Democrats Will Weaken Party

Milwaukee — (AP) — James E. Finnegan, Democratic candidate for United States senator, declared in a radio address last night that "a vote for Senator LaFollette is a vote to destroy the Democratic party in this state."

"If the Democrats of Wisconsin," he declared, "are to be the best of LaFollette turn their backs upon their party's chosen nominees, they are sapping the strength of the party," he said, "a course that will eventually bring the party to a position of ignominy and impotence that it held in our state for almost 40 years."

"I appeal to every citizen that believes in the reelection of our president to get behind me as the Democratic nominee for United States senator."

Dies When He Steps From Train on Trestle

Calumet, Mich. — (AP) — The body of Phillip Terriere, 65, L'Anse contractor, was found in the Fall River yesterday after an all-night search.

Baraga county authorities said Terriere drowned when he fell into the river as he stepped from a train which stopped on a trestle near the L'Anse station.

Terriere had accompanied a relative to the train and it departed with the contractor still aboard. A short distance from the station the train halted on the trestle, and Terriere, apparently thinking there was solid ground beneath the step, jumped off.

McGovern, at 74, is Seeking Office He Won at Outset of Long Career

(Editor's note: This is the sixth and last article in a series written by this newspaper's state capital correspondent on the candidates of the various political parties for governor and United States senator in the fall elections this year.)

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Milwaukee—There are few men now living in Wisconsin who have made a deeper impression on Wisconsin politics and government than Francis E. McGovern, Democratic candidate for the office of governor which he has sought four times before, twice successfully.

And there are few men now living or in the history of Wisconsin, who have participated in the business of politics more continuously or more actively. Now making his fifth bid for the state chief executive's office, he has also been a candidate for the United States senate four times.

McGovern has lived through, and been a part of, some of the most stirring events in American politics in the present century. Of him it can fairly be said that he affected the course of the nation's history at the 1912 Republican national convention, and perhaps, indirectly, events of world significance in the World war period.

Now, at the age of 74, he is trying again for an office which he won at the beginning of his political career 30 years ago, the governorship. Moreover, he is contesting for the office under the banner of the Democratic party, and as an opponent of the political movement, the Progressive organization, which elected him in 1912 and 1914.

Recently a reporter wrote of him that he was installing a Wisconsin New Deal before President Franklin D. Roosevelt knew what it was all about.

And it is true that McGovern was writing a distinguished record as governor back in 1912, when Frank-

FIFTH BID—Francis E. McGovern, Democratic candidate for governor, an office he has held twice and sought four times, has had a long and active career in state politics. He is 74 years old.

lin D. Roosevelt was merely a member of the New York legislature. In the Progressive view, McGovern was the ablest, most successful chief executive ever elected by the Progressive movement, always excepting the father and spiritual sponsor of the insurgent Republican movement of the first decades of the century.

Broke With LaFollette

It is an irony of history, therefore, that the fact which should have prevented McGovern from rising to greater heights in the political firmament was an inability to get along with the elder LaFollette. Although his name is written in the history of the Progressive movement as an illustrious early hero, the senior LaFollette's antipathy toward him in his tracks. In a score of years since his bitter break with the elder statesman of the Progressive party, McGovern has been unable to make a comeback.

McGovern entered upon what promised to be a highly brilliant political career after a spectacular record as district attorney of Milwaukee. Originally appointed to the job, he started a crusade against graft and corruption which made Milwaukee notorious among the nation's cities in the days when the muckrakers were exposing municipal shame generally. Scoring political ties, he ran for the office at the next election as an independent, and with the aid of an aroused and indignant public opinion which his preliminary excursions into the political underworld had inspired, he won the office.

His crusade, and the successful prosecutions had two significant effects. They unseated the city Democratic machine in Milwaukee and also made of the young Milwaukee prosecutor a statewide figure. He was urged to run for state office, and he did, as a Progressive Republican, although without the particular invitation of the elder LaFollette.

That was in 1908. He ran for governor, and was defeated.

But two years later he tried again and again against the hostility of the leader of the Progressive movement, but he made it. Then this six foot product of a Sheboygan county farm, ushered in a whole series of Progressive legislation which to this day is cited by Progressives as one of the most glorious parts of the Progressive record. Here it was that McGovern chose politics as a profession. A brilliant orator—even at 74 years of age he remains today one of the most effective political speakers in Wisconsin public life—he became a philosopher of Progressivism.

Star Rose Rapidly
McGovern's star rose rapidly in 1912, but that year also brought the experiences at the Republican national convention which brought about his downfall in Progressive politics.

LaFollette, T. R. Roosevelt and Taft were candidates for the presidential nomination at that convention. LaFollette started out as the candidate of the Progressive-Republicans, and by the summer of 1912 had organized a nation-wide Progressive movement. Roosevelt, the former president, returning from a hunting trip to Africa, changed his mind about being a candidate and sought the nomination.

LaFollette branded Roosevelt's candidacy a betrayal of his own. His bitterness, and that of his loyal followers from Wisconsin and other middlewestern states, was profound. He had made McGovern, then governor, chairman of the Wisconsin LaFollette-pledged delegation. McGovern was an implacable foe of the Taft stalwarts. LaFollette was the deep enemy of the Roosevelt boom.

In one of the most spectacular moves of a dramatic and historic convention, the Roosevelt forces put up McGovern for temporary chairman. It was the last straw in the precarious relations of McGovern and LaFollette. To the Wisconsin senator it was a traitorous defection of a trusted lieutenant.

Irreconcilable Enemies
McGovern and LaFollette were irreconcilable enemies now. LaFollette went out to support Wilson, the Democratic nominee. McGovern supported Roosevelt, who headed the "Bull Moose" independent campaign.

McGovern came back from that convention to get the governorship for a second term, in the face of LaFollette's bitter opposition. That opposition was to have its disappointing effect, however, two years later when the LaFollette forces prevented McGovern from getting what seemed a logical and certain United States senate seat. McGovern got the nomination, but the LaFollette machine supported Paul Husting, a Democrat, who won over the governor by a margin so narrow that the result was in doubt for days.

In a long series of attempts later, McGovern was unable to overcome that handicap. The LaFollette word was law in Progressive-Republican politics, as the man who started so brilliantly was to learn in bitter defeat after defeat. He failed to be returned to the governorship in 1916. He failed again to become senator in 1918. In 1925, after the death of the elder LaFollette, he ran against his son, Young Bob, whom followers had put up for the vacant seat, only to be defeated again.

In 1932 he changed party labels. He became a Democrat, supported and voted for Roosevelt, and in 1934 he made another attempt to win the cherished U. S. senatorship. Beaten again, he shortly saw his new leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt, ignore the Democratic nominee, John Callahan, and publicly support Young Bob LaFollette.

But he was not yet ready to admit that his political career had ended. He found a few years later joining a revolt movement within the Democratic party, a movement which in a sense resembled his earlier crusading against stalwarts in the Republican party. He joined the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, formed to rid the Democratic state organization of conservatives and do-nothing politicians. He became the Democratic party candidate for governor when the DPOW won nomination of its primary ticket.

But again this aged stormy petrel was to run into discouraging problems. Last week he found, to his keen resentment, that the national Democratic party apparently doesn't appreciate his efforts to rebuild Wisconsin democracy. And when Candidate Henry Wallace of the Democratic national ticket spoke kind words about Progressive LaFollette, ignored McGovern and the state ticket, the aged veteran stomped off the Wallace platform in anger and disgust.

LIGHTS AT NIGHT INTEREST HIM—Ronald Vallance, 13-year-old English boy from Glasgow, Scotland, shown with his grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Levy, 206 Webster street, Neenah, with whom he will make his home for the duration of the war, is used to blackouts and lights at night are strange. Ronald will enroll in Neenah schools Monday. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Glasgow Youngster Arrives at Neenah to Stay 'for Duration'

Neenah — "We had no air raid shelters, we just stayed in the house," said Ronald Vallance, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Vallance, Glasgow, Scotland, who arrived in Neenah Tuesday to spend the duration of the war with his grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Levy, 206 Webster street. Ronald left his home in Glasgow 12 days ago, arriving in New York three days ago. He took a plane to Chicago and another plane to Milwaukee where his uncle, David Levy, 206 Webster street, met him and brought him to Neenah. Neenah is no strange American city to Ronald because he visited here five years ago for two months. About 300 children and 500 adults were on the ship that brought Ronald to the United States. The crossing was smooth and Ronald stood on deck all night at watch the lights of New York as the ship neared port.

Caution Is Habit
Lights at night are the strangest part of Ronald's American visit because he is used to blackouts. His aunt gave him a flashlight the other evening to go out to the car and as he stepped it on walking to the car, he hurriedly pointed it earthward so the light wouldn't show and then declared, "Oh, I forgot, I'm in America now." Ronald's dad and mother who are both English, will remain in Glasgow. A brother, Henry, is a pilot and trains two days a week with the Royal Air Force. Glasgow experiences nightly air raids, Ronald said but the planes come over only in groups of two to drop their bombs. "They haven't done much damage," Ronald said. Ronald attended Paisley Grammar school in Glasgow. He will enroll in school in Neenah next Monday.

Clapper Says Willkie Needs The Breaks, but May Get Them

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
New York—Any prediction about the outcome of this election can be only a guess. But I can rely the best-informed guesses available. They add up to this conclusion:

Roosevelt needs only a few breaks to win. Willkie needs all the breaks to win.

That would seem to give Roosevelt an edge. Yet it must be remembered that at Philadelphia Willkie also needed all the breaks to win. He got them. There is a pro-Willkie tide at work—and no informed and frank Democrat will deny it. The only question is whether the tide is sufficient to push Willkie over the line. I doubt if that question can be answered until the votes are counted. Meantime partisans can and will answer it in their own favor.

The best line on the situation perhaps is afforded by the inside picture which the Republicans have of their own chances, because it shows so clearly why Willkie must have all the breaks to win. Republicans can give him an electoral majority by counting on his side most of the big industrial states, which are considered close.

The Republicans claim these states as sure: Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming—total 151 electoral votes.

Republicans say they probably will win also Massachusetts, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania—total, 119 electoral votes.

Those two groups total 270 electoral votes, four more than a majority. Note, however, that to reach this total Willkie must carry New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Massachusetts, Illinois, Ohio, Minnesota, and Wisconsin—all of which seem to be close. The loss of any one of them would be serious, if not fatal.

The only protection the Republicans have against losses in this essential group of states comes from a scattering of other states about which they are not too hopeful but some of which might go to Willkie. These are Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey and Rhode Island—a total of 60 electoral votes.

The remainder of the states, totaling 201 electoral votes—including the south, the border, California and some of the mountain states—are regarded by the Republicans as likely to go for Roosevelt. That does not mean they have quit fighting. In California especially an intense last-minute effort, with speeches by Senator Hiram Johnson and Governor Stassen of Minnesota, is being made.

The Republicans are fighting with everything they have. It should not be assumed that they are ready to lie down and accept the division of votes as indicated above.

New York State is Neck and Neck Now

New York seems extremely close. Possibly 6,000,000 votes will be cast. When dealing with such numbers no one can be sure. Governor Lehman was re-elected two years by a margin of 60,000 votes. Polls and the judgment of informed political leaders on both sides indicate that the state is neck and neck now. Both parties are putting enormous effort into New York—Republicans because Willkie must have New York the fight is over.

Attention Voters for Sheriff

One week ago, the Versteegen for Sheriff Club made known to the electorate in our county the manner in which the present sheriff's office, composed of John Lappen and Fred Frank, are operating that office. It disclosed the case of Fred H. Neumann who was sentenced to 180 days in the detention camp on August 19th, 1940, for fraudulent issuance of worthless checks. It disclosed that the individual was delivered to the sheriff to be taken to the detention camp. It is a positive fact that he was let go so that he could skip to California and he never served one day of his sentence.

It was also disclosed, although it is common knowledge that an innocent man was shot while standing on the dock of the Appleton Boat Club by buckshot discharged from a cannon on one of the boats. Fred Frank is an active member of this club and it is a positive fact that no investigation was made by our Sheriff's Department of this shooting.

One week ago we asked the Sheriff's Department for an answer to these charges and to date none has been forthcoming. It is an old trick, and an unfair thing, to attempt to answer these charges on the day before election so that we would not have a chance to disclose to the voters the real facts. You voters will undoubtedly find that Fred Frank will attempt to do this the last day. Regardless of what his answer will be to these charges, please bear in mind that he had a good opportunity to be fair with you and answer it promptly. No matter what the answer may be we can assure you it will be a false answer because the things that were disclosed are POSITIVE FACTS.

The office of Sheriff is important to every person in this county and we should elect the most competent individual. We do not want a sheriff that will favor certain individuals and you will want a sheriff that will do his duty when called upon to do it. The permitting of a convicted criminal to leave the office so that he can go to California is a serious offense. In permitting boats on our river to carry loaded cannon under the very eyes of Fred Frank is a serious matter. That case should be investigated to its utmost. It has been rumored that Fred Frank answers that part of the charges by claiming that it is a Federal offense and therefore out of his jurisdiction. Do not be fooled by such remarks. The man that was shot was shot on the dock and was not on the water.

Congress of the United States

Committee on Foreign Affairs
House of Representatives
Washington

Hon. Joshua L. Johns August 8, 1940
Member of Congress, 8th Wisconsin District
Alcona, Wisconsin

Dear Joshua:

As ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs in the House of Representatives, to which was referred legislation dealing with our foreign policies during the last Congress, I am taking this opportunity to express to you my sincere appreciation of your splendid and effective cooperation in the Congress toward keeping America out of foreign wars.

I hope your constituents will realize the service you have rendered to them and the time, energy and ability you have given to prevent intervention in the European war.

We must have a Congress that will vote to keep America out of foreign wars unless we are attacked or the Monroe Doctrine is violated. This is a great American issue and transcends all party lines.

I am confident that the people of your District will appreciate the extent to which you have contributed to the cause of peace and, irrespective of party affiliations, will see to it that you are returned to Congress on your anti-war record to carry on the work you have so ably and courageously performed in their interest during your service in the House.

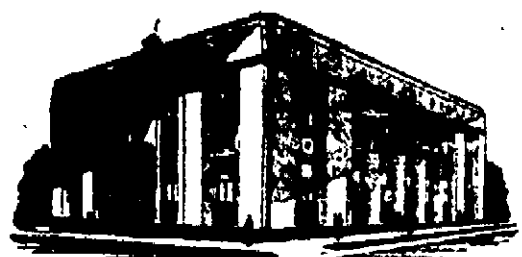

The Congress of the United States alone can declare war. It is essential, therefore, that its Members who have led the fight to keep us out of foreign wars be reelected in November.

With kind regards and best wishes, I am,

Sincerely yours,
HAMILTON FISH

After All, Is Willkie a Sort of Dub?

Before the voter's pencil falls upon the ballot he should soberly reflect upon some of the undisputed facts in this campaign.

(1) It is freely conceded that in 1917 Mr. Willkie, a lawyer and university graduate, rushed into the army the day after America declared war. He took the same procedure followed by farmers and teamsters and coal shovellers. He certainly meant business and he spent about 18 months in France fighting the Germans.

Is a man a sort of dub who throws himself recklessly and without restraint into his country's cause when by a little stealthy planning he might find the prestige of official position or even a shining mahogany desk upon which to lean instead of the cold, wet, muddy parapets behind the barbed wire at the front?

(2) When he came out of the army Willkie had nothing but a wife and son. He went to work with a great gusto at $175 a month. Ten years later he was president of one of America's great industries with a salary of $75,000 a year. As such he pursued an open and generous policy toward labor, an honest, straightforward policy toward the public, and thus he was able to solve many perplexing problems for his company that had accrued through the mismanagement of others. He announced to his company that rare doctrine—Do not raise rates when business is dull but get busy and make more business. His board of directors voted him a substantial increase in pay. Willkie wouldn't take it. Willkie told his directors that he thought $75,000 a year was the maximum salary a company should pay any man. He also spoke rather loftily of his bounden duty to protect the tens of thousands of stockholders in that company.

The question is whether a sentimental chump like that who has no money-madness about him is fit to be president, or whether the voter prefers one whose family takes down from half a million to a million a year out of the influence of the White House.

Willkie could have doubled his salary, probably trebled it. Was he a yap for not doing so?

(3) Turn the page now to the senate investigating committee headed by Senator Wheeler, one of the country's most consistent and aggressive Progressives. Wheeler is conducting an investigation into utility holding companies. As a sharp inquisitor he is hard to beat. Willkie is on the stand. The investigators for the government have gone tirelessly through all his stewardship of his company. At the conclusion of his examination the record shows that Senator Wheeler said:

"Thank you, Mr. Willkie. I want to say this to you: If all utility companies were like yours and all utility executives were like Wendell Willkie we wouldn't be sitting here today."

Back again the voter must come to ask himself whether in a period of extensive misbehavior a man like Willkie who ran things so honestly and above board that he received thanks publicly as above set forth is fit to occupy the White House.

The voters are the judges. They may want to be ruled by ability, candor and unselfishness. Or they may prefer to be ruled by incompetency, volubly expressed sweetness and money madness.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Browder

The public should not miss the savagery with which the Attorney General has attacked the Russian wife of Mr. Browder and ordered her exclusion without pity and without remorse.

The gesture on the eve of election is a confession that someone has a guilty conscience. And it is a bit cowardly when directed at a woman.

Meanwhile tens of thousands of alien rats wander over the land, kept here because of political sympathies like that evidenced by the attorney general when he wilfully dismissed indictments returned by grand juries against the Detroit Reds who had lured American boys to their deaths upon Spanish battlefields.

After the election, whichever way it goes, the attorney general will probably soften and turn Mrs. Browder loose even as thousands, actually arrested and convicted as criminal aliens, have been turned loose under the present administration to repeat their depredations.

A Yardstick Come to Judgment

Elsewhere in this issue the Post-Crescent prints some photographs of official government documents comparing the rates of private and municipal public utilities. It is the first complete compendium upon this subject that has been called to our attention and is well worth careful study and reflection.

A great many people may be astonished by the fact that, taking the country over, private utilities actually receive about 20 per cent less for electric current than publicly owned ones. Into the making of these figures has come every electric utility in the country.

It will be noted that the figures have been gathered by the Department of Commerce while under the authority of Harry Hopkins. And published, too, is the printed attempt of the department to explain or justify the fact that publicly owned utilities charge more for their current than those operated under private ownership and direction. We would not lightly put aside the reasons given or the explanation attempted although there is no proof at hand that if conditions were altered the result would be any different. Man when he becomes a political animal also becomes an excuse factory. And the way he can turn out alibis is beautiful to behold.

The trouble with utility rates in politics is that the people seldom get the whole truth from either side. The utility manager often picks out a publicly owned electric property that has been run in the worst possible manner to hold up to the public as a fair example. The politician, intent upon posing as a crusader for the people against some great menace, is most likely to compare some excellently operated municipal utility with some private utility notoriously mishandled.

There are publicly owned electric utilities in big cities as well as small although it may be true that the percentage in the small is higher than in the greater population centers. But a 20 per cent differential cannot be sneezed aside. And this differential exists despite the fact that in some places legislation highly favorable to municipally owned utilities has been enacted, usually lightening their taxes which is one of the big items in life with any large concern today.

So at last we have a yardstick. It was prepared by the present administration. It professes to cover the country and it proves that thing so often proven before, that private management is highly advantageous to the people, and particularly when the evils that might develop from it are held firmly in check by efficient and capable regulation.

Trying to Rope The Jews and Catholics

The Third Term campaign started in 1937. Then it was that the President recalled our ambassador to Berlin because the Hitler government had released malignant attacks upon the Jews.

Our national interests were hazarded so the President could woo the Jewish vote in New York which is substantial and might turn that important state with its 47 electoral votes. No ambassador was recalled at Russian atrocities, perhaps a hundred times worse than German. No ambassador was recalled at Japanese atrocities, oriental in their studied cruelty and devilishness.

Over a year ago Mr. Roosevelt appointed a perfectly useless ambassador to the Vatican. The purpose of honeymooning up to the Catholics was just too evident. The Vatican is not a nation. It merits no ambassador. Moreover we have an ambassador right in Rome, located a few blocks from the Vatican. But the Catholic vote in New York, Chicago and Jersey City is pretty important. Why not feed them some sugarplums?

We wander upon a very perilous road when our national policies are directed toward influencing elections by purposeful appeals to the blood call or religious sentiments.

"If We Only Could Blot Out the Past"

In 1916 it was that the present chief justice, Mr. Hughes, was defeated for president by a narrow margin. And America went to war because of that defeat.

We spent 60 billions and 100,000 lives and left Europe in the worst condition it has been since it arose from the ocean's bottom.

And with the war we got Prohibition, numerous criminal gangs, Harry Daugherty and Albert Fall, rocketing prices followed by toboggan slides, with an eventual ascendancy of hair-brained crackpots without parallel in history.

Yes, if we could only blot out the election of that idealist in 1916, for idealists are deadly dangerous when trouble is in the air. If we could blot out that election we would also blot out the present world war. For if we stayed out that other war would have resulted in the usual compromise. Hitler would still be jabbering under his breath as he painted out houses, and Mussolini would be gurgling spaghetti with tomato sauce up some alley in Genoa.

Look at what the idealists of 1916 did to us.

The American tobacco crop in 1939 was the largest on record.

There are about 1,172,000,000 cross ties in railroad track in the United States.

The name "Asia" comes from the Sanskrit "ushas," signifying "land of the dawn."

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
(Editor's Note—With the Brass Ring goes one free ride on The Washington Merry-Go-Round. Labor leader John L. Lewis gets it this week.)
Akron, O.—Out here in the heart of industrial Ohio, organized labor still is rubbing its eyes and wondering if it is really true that John L. Lewis is partaking of the same board and bed with Wendell Willkie.

Especially are people amazed in this city, where Willkie got his start in the utility business, and where he is credited by close friends of ex-Governor Martin Davey with being the behind-the-scenes figure who inspired the calling out of the National Guard against the CIO in 1937.

This was the famous struggle when John L. Lewis attempted to force the "Little Steel" industry to accept CIO unions, and when Tom Girdler, head of Republic Steel, refused to sit in a mediation meeting with Charles P. Taft because John L. Lewis was present.

"I've never seen John L. Lewis except at a distance," Girdler proclaimed, "and I hope to God I never do."

At present Girdler, as one of the financial powers behind Willkie's campaign, is among those responsible for raising the money for Lewis' $45,000 broadcast.

THE STORY OF STEEL

The steel strike was a bitter experience for Lewis, and to get the full significance of how greatly he has changed it is necessary to remember that this effort was one of the greatest in his career.

For years, labor had been attempting to organize the steel industry and had only such bloody monuments as the Homestead strike to show for its pains. Then came the re-election of Roosevelt in 1936, which Lewis considered a sign that the country would back him in the organization of steel. With the backstage support of Roosevelt, who was a good friend of Myron Taylor (later ambassador to the Vatican), the giant U. S. Steel Corporation yielded to labor and signed an agreement with Lewis. However, the big independents—Bethlehem, Republic, Inland, National and Youngstown Sheet and Tube—remained obdurate. And in the spring of 1937, John L. Lewis, with a strike fund of $500,000 at his disposal, set out to force union organization on them.

There followed rioting and bloodshed. Sixteen men were killed in South Chicago. Airplanes dropped food on plants at Warren and Niles, Ohio, for workers unable to pass the picket line. The Youngstown plants closed, but Girdler's Republic Steel plants remained partially open.

DAVEY AND WILLKIE

The situation was such that if the Youngstown and Republic plants could completely reopen, despite the picket line, it meant that the strike was broken.

It was at this point that some of the steel executives, casting around for a means of influencing Governor Davey, remembered that one of his close friends was Wendell Willkie. The two had become acquainted when Willkie was practicing law in Akron.

In fact, Willkie, then a Democrat, had helped Davey run his campaign when the latter was a member of congress. Later, A. C. Blinn, president of the Ohio Edison Company, of which Willkie was chairman of the board, contributed substantially to Davey's campaign for governor, and it was understood inside the Davey entourage that this generosity was inspired at least in part by Mr. Willkie.

So it was not unnatural for the steel executives to think of Willkie as the man who was close to Governor Davey, and might help in the strike.

DAVEY CALLS TROOPS

On June 22, 1937—the day when Davey finally called out the troops and ordered them to disperse the picket lines—the governor was besieged with telephone calls and telegrams. But only four outsiders got through to him. One was Secretary of Labor Perkins. Another was President Roosevelt. Another was John L. Lewis. And the fourth was Rawley Reece, Willkie's legislative agent, who called Davey intermittently during the day.

After Davey called out the troops, thus permitting the plants previously closed by strikers to reopen, he received a telegram of congratulations from Wendell Willkie.

This telegram, incidentally, later became the subject of argument between Mr. Willkie and the U. S. government. For internal revenue agents, going through various tax reports, found that his company, Commonwealth and Southern, had paid for this message of congratulations to Davey. Willkie has cited the incident to friends as an illustration of government red tape.

John L. Lewis lost the strike, and it was a crushing blow. He was so bitter that one year later he turned out the CIO in full strength to defeat Davey in the Democratic primaries.

BITTER AGAINST WILLKIE

Probably John L. never dreamed, at that time, that he would ever be urging labor to vote for Willkie. For among other things he criticized Governor Davey because he associated with Wendell Willkie.

It was in the year following that Willkie, one of the leading members of the Ohio society in New York, invited Davey to speak at the Ohio dinner on November 15, 1938, and explain his action in calling out the troops. At that time Davey said:

"When I attended the annual dinner of the Ohio society in New York last year, John L. Lewis remarked that I was associating with such men as Wendell Willkie. But I hope to live long enough to see it a mark of honor for a man to make good."

Note—The year following, 1939, Willkie and Tom Girdler were co-speakers at the Ohio dinner in New York, where Willkie praised John L. Lewis' arch-enemy, Girdler, as follows: "If we are patient we shall come to see the time when men like Girdler are recognized as true benefactors of America."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Washington—Modest Donald Nelson, ex-Sears Roebuck executive, is becoming one of the most job-lodged officials in the capital. He already has four—procurement director, coordinator of defense purchases, administrator of the priority board, and director of the new agency to bring small business into the defense program. . . . The six far western congressmen who have been vanguard advocates of public power development are having the political battle of their lives and face possible defeat. They are Representatives Frank Havenner and Ed. V. Izac of California, Walter M. Pierce of Oregon, Martin Smith, Knute Hall, and Charles Leavy of Washington. . . . Representative Lindsay Warren, N. C., doesn't know it, but in preparation for his becoming U. C. comptroller general, the agency is jamming through government accounts with practically no auditing. The general accounting office has remained without a chief for nearly a year, is riddled with incompetence, is months behind in auditing accounts, is still working on February vouchers. . . . The boys are showing their colors in the home stretch. Telephone callers at the McGraw-Hill plant in Philadelphia are greeted with this salutation: "McGraw-Hill Publishing Company. Voting for Willkie."

Stinnett

He was a heavy-set, dumpy deputy sheriff from the sagebrush country. He was terribly overweight and while it was expected that the NPA's daily hour of physical training would reduce his weight, in the ensuing weeks he became almost skinny.

His actions were called strange. Although he never missed a class, he never went to luncheon with his classmates and immediately the afternoon sessions were out he would hurry off by himself. The other members of the class dubbed him "the lone wolf"—made jokes about him, snickered behind his back.

Finally, the course was over and, on "graduation day," the Lone Wolf came into the office of the assistant director. He said: "There's something been worrying me. I know the fellows don't like me. They think I'm a queer guy, I guess. That's all right. I don't blame them. But I did feel kind like some explanation was due you."

"The truth is I had to mortgage my home to get enough money to pay my expenses here. I had to leave my family and some other relatives I'm kinda taking care of back home. It's been a little tough."

"When I got my budget all figured out, I found I just had 35 cents a day to buy meals while I was here. I didn't mind that for myself. Shucks, I had coffee and doughnuts for breakfast, soup for lunch, and I managed to get along for supper. But I couldn't stand for those fellows to see me eating like that and I couldn't tell 'em where I was going for my meals."

I guess it's what you call false pride. But that's the way it was, anyway. And I just figured I ought to tell you that I'm not really a strange guy and if I had it to do over again, I'd do it the same way because that's about the only way I could have got what the academy has to offer."

(There isn't a sorority girl in the country who doesn't know the ceremony of "putting the pin outside." It comes, generally at the close of the year, most often the senior year, when a girl who has been secretly wearing a fraternity pin under her blouse, puts it outside over her heart and lets the world know she is engaged to so-and-so. Here's the Washington version.)

A young woman government worker we know is an ardent Willkie-ite. At a friend's house she was given a very pretty Willkie button. She remembered that the Hatch act forbade her wearing it during working hours, so she pinned it under her lapel. That evening, as she started to leave the building, she pulled her collar up around her throat. It wasn't until she got home that her attention was called to the fact that she had been brazening it out for an hour with this tell-tale, headlight most prominently displayed.

The next morning she pinned the button inside her coat and then forgot, throwing the garment over the back of her chair in the department stood out like a lantern on a starless night. Co-workers snickered. Junior executives scowled. Finally her best friend told her.

The young lady hasn't given up. She now wears the button pinned under her dress (the old college custom). "But," she says, "I just know that some day I'm going to forget and wear a peepaboo shirt-waist and then I will be out of a job."

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

Maybe I'm going out on a limb, but my prediction is that Wendell Willkie will win the election so easily that there will be cries of "I was drugged."

The people don't vote for anybody; they vote against somebody, and no president in years has left himself so wide open for knock-out punches from here, there, and everywhere as Mr. Roosevelt, in my unimportant opinion.

I think there are more Americans who love America's traditions and customs and institutions than there are who don't. And that made Mr. Roosevelt's unprecedented third-term aim a cooked goose from the start. I still think you can fool some of the people all the time and some of the people all the time, but you can't fool Americans about a third-term being a bad thing any of the time.

Even if the president was the wonder of the ages and his administration had pleased everybody, including the Republicans, the voters would want to see him obey the rules, respect the traditions, be a good sport and give somebody else a chance.

Quiet Halloween Is Observed at Waupaca

Waupaca—Soaped windows and a few misplaced "for rent" signs, are the only testimony to the fact that Halloween arrived. Not a single phone call came to the city police who made previous arrangements to forestall any depredations to property. Although the youngsters had plenty of fun, even to soaping the car of Chief of Police Paul Jones, it is the first year in many that there has not been considerable damage done.

Sparring Partners

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Madison—In the excitement of the battle for ballots during recent weeks, the spotlight has been removed from some of the personalities who have played prominent roles during the two years of the Heil rule of the statehouse. August Frey of the bureau of research for example.

It can now definitely be said that Frey submitted his resignation to Governor Heil about six weeks ago. However, this correspondent suggests the probability that Heil will not accept the resignation, and that Frey will figure in the second Heil term—if the governor is reelected—just as prominently, if not as controversially, as he has during the first two years.

Frey's role in administration affairs is a peculiar one. An old and trusted friend of Julius Heil, he is bitterly hostile toward some of the governor's other friends and associates, and particularly those who came into Heil's circle with his political adventurism. Frey's letter of resignation, written in a huff, was the direct result of unfortunate frays between him and some of those later Heil friends.

The probability that Frey will not be allowed to resign is based on the fact that Heil has ignored the resignation letter during the whole of his reelection campaign. Considering that the governor was strongly urged to get rid of his research director for political reasons—it was argued that highway and conservation organizations would thus be placated—it is highly unlikely that the governor will do so after the election, when there is no political reason for doing so.

But more than that, Heil is not the kind of man who discards old friends so easily. And Frey and Heil are old friends—their friendship dating back more than 30 years. Frey and Heil were friends when the latter was still dreaming dreams of riches and success. They have been intimates throughout the period when fame and prosperity overlooked the German immigrant boy, while leaving the other, also an immigrant, somewhat behind. They understand each other. Their plays are intimate companions. They play cards together and vacation together. The exigencies and pressures of partisanship in the capitol are not going to dissolve that friendship.

PENSION TALK

How Julius Heil's enthusiastic speech-making sometimes runs awry with him is well illustrated in his statement this week that if he is reelected he will propose a retirement system for state employees, and that even if he is defeated, he will return to legislative halls to lobby such a bill through the legislature.

The governor seemingly forgets that a retirement bill for state help has been introduced in every recent legislature, and that it has been uniformly turned down because of the huge public fund outlays which such a plan necessarily entails. It is recalled, for example, that a retirement proposal was advanced in the last legislature, which Heil's administration controlled for all essential purposes, but that no one in the executive office or in the Republican house majorities ever hinted that the administration favored it. Consequently it languished indefinitely and was finally forgotten by its sponsors.

A retirement system for state employees will be expensive, principally because of the relatively large initial outlay necessitated by the abnormally large number of employees now eligible for retirement. Half a

Personal Health Talks

WHAT IS A SPECIALIST?

Some of our more ambitious eye, ear, nose and throat specialists who treat anything above the neck are facetiously dubbed head specialists. And some of the more versatile internists of the day are general specialists treating everything from the neck down. The entire field of specialism is absurdly overexploited in America anyway. For every real specialist now in practice there are half a dozen or more trick specialists who employ every possible device or stratagem to lure the unwary layman.

A real specialist is a doctor whose knowledge or skill in his chosen field is recognized by the medical profession, and hence physicians call him in consultation in difficult cases or refer their patients to him for his counsel or advice. Obviously his reputation rests on his acknowledged ability.

A trick specialist is a doctor, any doctor who chooses to call himself a specialist although he has had little or no more training and experience in the particular branch of practice he chooses than the average practitioner has had. The laity fails to comprehend that there is no legal restriction on specialism in practice—any doctor who has a license to practice may engage in any specialty he prefers or any number of specialties he prefers. And so, taking advantage of the unwary public, the six trick specialists usually manage to sway the wisecracker who thinks it is smart thing to pass by the ordinary doctor and go straight to a specialist when there is anything the matter.

I do not mean to say that the raft of trick specialist are quacks in the popular sense of the term. It would be easier to recognize and avoid them if they were. Most of them are members in good standing in the various medical societies and to the casual observer they may appear to abide by the principles of medical ethics, but they advertise for all of that, and in ways that are highly effective. They have to resort to some such device in order to build a business—they could never get enough practice to pay the rent if they relied upon the confidence of their colleagues as real specialists do.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Saturday, Nov. 6, 1915
It was announced that the Bulgarians had captured Nish. The Serbian capital's fall followed three days of tenacious fighting. German submarines passing through the straits of Gibraltar sank two French steamers and an Italian one.

All arrangements had been completed for the annual procession at St. Joseph cemetery the following day.

Fred Peasley of Fremont was in Appleton the previous day. Mr. Peasley a short time previous sold his market at Fremont and was going to take up farm life.

10 YEARS AGO

Saturday, Nov. 1, 1930
A number of Appleton dentists were planning to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary clinic and meeting of the Marquette university dental school alumni Nov. 5 to 8. Appleton dentists who were graduates of Marquette included Doctors S. J. Kloehn, C. L. Kolb, F. V. Heuch, J. C. Stillman, H. F. O'Brien, C. Perschbacher, R. R. Lally, A. L. Werner, O. R. Busch, H. K. Pratt, L. H. Moore, M. Goers and R. G. Van Susteren.

Prof. O. P. Fairfield was to speak on Children's Art at a meeting of the First ward school Parent-Teacher association Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Waterman were to sing.

Among motion picture stars in shows then playing Appleton were Hoot Gibson, Gloria Swanson, Jack Holt, Sue Carol and Phil Dorsey.

Beauty and You

By Patricia Lindsay

COSMETIC TOUCH—This youthful belle applies a new soft red shade to her lips because it harmonizes so nicely with her soft green outfit.

This year American women may wear about anything and be in fashion, for there is such a variety of creations that it is difficult to make any hard and fast rules about choice of materials, fullness of skirts, length of waistline and degree of décolleté. All we are certain about is that all the creations were made with a slender figure in mind so if you keep nicely proportioned you may wear anything that suits your type.

Because of this style dilemma the cosmetic firms have been forced to offer a wide choice of make-up colors. There are the rich, dark reds for lips and nails, with powder to blend nicely, and then there are the brilliant, clear reds, a russet shade or two and an occasional purplish lipstick. Each lipstick, of course, has its companion properly shaded—face powder, rouge, nail polish, and eye make-up.

There they are for your selection. The thing to do is to point up your day costumes with one set of make-up which lends a pretty accent to your complete grooming, and then select another set for your more formal clothes, or party clothes.

Test What Colors Do
If you live in a city you most likely will want to wear the newer deeper shades of make-up. Some of those almost black-reds make eyes look brighter and skin more fair. But they are not for the country. They look hoydenish with sports clothes and a natural landscape. Reserve them for your night life in town, or your late afternoon tea dates.

The clear reds, soft true rose, russets and purple make-up are mixed to blend with the colors so popular during late autumn—rich greens, old browns, inky purples, the airy, ready popular Indian Summer, and the new color—midnight blue. But you cannot buy one of these shades at random and expect it to do something for your general ensemble. Take time to test the shade on the back of your hand and look at it in the broad daylight. Artificial light at cosmetic counters are deceiving—if you are going to wear it during daylight hours, look at it in daylight!

Don't Match Skin

Once beauty advisers used to tell you to key your make-up to your skin tone. This is no longer necessary. It is better to key your make-up to the colors you wear (taking for granted that you select colors to complement your natural coloring), and then rely on a foundation cream of a shade which will give your skin a tone which will blend beautifully with the make-up harmony you have chosen. Even a light skin lady can appear two shades darker by using a deeper make-up foundation lotion or cream and matching powder to it.

There is fun in making a pretty face these days. No artist had more colors to work with. But I must caution you to apply all make-up art-

JITTERY BRIDEGROOM

A bridegroom-to-be has just explained to me that if he might sing at the church during the time he waited for his bride, it would soothe his nerves. Otherwise he knows he is going to be "three jumps ahead of a fit." As to this, I suppose he is the best judge of the effect of his singing, and if he really wants to sing, it is not impossible for him to do so.

In other words, an occasional bridegroom has been known to sing during the time that the organist plays while the congregation is assembling. He should, however, be hidden from view, either behind palms or other floral screen arranged near the organ. But he would, I think, lay himself open to criticism if he stood facing the congregation, as though the chancel were a concert platform.

A Military Wedding
Dear Mrs. Post: My fiancé would naturally like to have a military wedding. His best man and the ushers will also wear their uniforms since all are in the service. Does this mean that I have to be dressed in white and wear a wedding veil and have bridesmaids and a maid of honor, or may I wear street clothes and have just my sister stand with me? I know that you are partial to a white bridal dress and veil but I had wanted to save expenses since there is mighty little money to take care of everything.

Answer: The fact that your fiancé and the men of the wedding party are going to wear uniforms does not in any way exact that the bride be dressed in white. Whether you are dressed in white or not is a matter of your own personal preference. The reason why I am partial to white (it's quite true that I am) is that it is a privilege that comes only once in a woman's lifetime, and so very many who have worn ordinary clothes have been sorry afterwards. The world is full of the wistful wishes of those who would like to be able to remember themselves in white and a veil. Judging by letters sent me, I would say there are uncountable numbers who thought their wedding dress very unimportant at the time, and then, as the years go by, they get more and more sentimental

UTILITY YARDSTICK PUBLISHED BY DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE—The accompanying photographs of a census of electrical industries in this country for the year 1937, but printed in 1939, show that privately owned electric utilities furnish current at an average rate 20 per cent cheaper than the average rate of the municipally owned utilities. For the state of Wisconsin the saving is not nearly so great as in the nation as a whole. Here the privately owned utilities furnish their current at an average of about 5 per cent less than the average received by the municipally owned utilities.

Also printed above is the "explanation" attempted to be made for the fact that municipally owned plants require more for their current than those privately owned.

Begin Work on Waterwheel at Utility Project

Factory Engineer in Charge of Installing
3,200 Horsepower Unit

Kaukauna—Installation of a 3,200 horsepower waterwheel began at the new hydroelectric project this week, with an engineer from Kaplan Automatic Waterwheel company of York, Pa., on the job to supervise, according to H. F. Weckwerth, utility superintendent.

The 2,400 kilowatt generator will be installed soon. If operated to full capacity 24 hours a day it will generate 1,728,000 Kilowatts of electricity each month.

It is expected that concrete for the last dam section, of 270 feet, will be poured next week. Workmen are now filling the coffer dam below the Badger plant tailrace with stone and clay. The barrier will be 41 feet high, with the dam stretching across the islands to the plant varying in height from nothing to 71 feet.

The layout is designed to handle 42,000 cubic feet of water per second, with three sluice gates in the dam, each of which can discharge 18,000 cubic feet per second.

A conception of the big job may be obtained from figures cited by Weckwerth. The dam channel is 150 feet wide and six feet deep, the dam 2,425 feet long, plus 90 feet of sluice gates, and the tailrace below the new powerhouse is 1,200 feet long.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Franck, center in the upper left picture, are receiving the prizes for the best costumes at the Lions party, which was held at the American Legion clubhouse, from J. R. Whitman, left, and Mrs. Frank Weinkauf, right. Probably trying to figure out how to get his teeth into the pumpkin, Alex Sauter is the discouraged gentleman in the center picture. Engaging in that Old Halloween custom, bobbing for apples, Mr. Sauter is shown again at the lower left, and next to him, reading clockwise, are Mrs. W. H. Falatick, Ben Cherkasky, Mr. Falatick and Mrs. David Carlson. 'Two on an Island' Will Be First Lawrence Play

Elmer Rice's "Two on an Island" will be presented by the Lawrence College Theater at Memorial chapel Monday and Tuesday nights, November 11 and 12. The entire production, first of the year, will be in the hands of F. T. Cloak, director, and Roger Sherman, designer and technical director. Assistants to the director are Lou Heinritz, Appleton; Marcia Latta, Janesville, and William Hogue, Milwaukee.

"Two on an Island" is a modern 3-act comedy drama of this year's New York season. There are 11 scenes and 10 different settings. The leading role in the New York production was played by Betty Field who is one of Mr. Cloak's former students at the Berkshire Playhouse at Stockbridge, Mass. She will be best remembered as the feminine lead in the movie version of "Of Mice and Men".

The story deals with two young people who come to New York to find career in the theater, he an actor and she a playwright. They arrive at the same time but are unknown to each other and do not meet until after two whirlwind years fighting the life of the big city. Their ambition, hardships and successes are brought out through interesting and pleasant experience during this period.

The play gives a cross section of New York life in the many types of characters. The upper structure gives a panorama of the entire city and its people, the lower structure places in different scenes the lives of the Statute of Liberty and the Statue of Liberty.

Sale of Individual Tickets For Kirsten Flagstad Concert To Begin Monday Morning

Following a successful season ticket sale for the Lawrence College Artist series, the individual tickets for the Kirsten Flagstad concert, the opening number, on Nov. 15 will open Monday morning at Belling's drug store. The many orders from out-of-town including several from upper Michigan indicate a capacity house to hear Madame Flagstad that evening, and college officials are prepared to place chairs on the stage if the attendance warrants, to take care of the overflow crowd.

The entertainment tastes of the American public are notoriously fickle, but Kirsten Flagstad, Metropolitan Opera prima donna who will sing at Lawrence Memorial chapel Nov. 15, has continued to maintain her popularity over a period of seven years, a feat little short of amazing. Some idea of the hold she has over her public can be gained by the fact that she fills one hundred engagements each season. Of her Oscar Thompson, distinguished critic of the New York Sun, says, "There is reason to ponder anew the rare good fortune of a generation privileged to hear singing of such splendor."

Never Temperamental Fame does not seem to have changed Kirsten Flagstad, for she still does not have a maid, although some prima donnas travel with an entourage of six or seven assistants. She does not follow this custom because of economy but because she hates to have people fussing around her.

When she is on tour she packs her own suitcases herself and dresses herself. At the Metropolitan if she has a quick change to make she asks the wardrobe mistress to help her.

Two backstage Metropolitan functionaries who express their opinion on all artists with the utmost candor, recently gave their views about Flagstad. Nicholas Lanzilotti who is in charge of costumes said, "She is the greatest artist the Metropolitan has had in many years and the simplest. No fuss or feathers, no temperament. The kind you are proud to know."

Adolph Senz, wig-maker and make-up expert, agrees with the following words: "I consider her the finest character that ever walked in through that stage door. She's calm. She's patient while you fix her, and when she goes out on the stage she's perfect. The biggest artists are the best people."

GOP Confident As Campaign Nears Close

heavy Republican vote and general party victory in the election Tuesday.

Another, and one in which many veteran politicians put much stock, is the unequal distribution of campaign funds this year. Republicans have collected more money more easily than in any other recent election, while Progressives complain that they are able to collect even minimum campaign expenses only under extreme duress.

Democrats Lack Funds
Democrats, reportedly cut-off from the national party war chest, are sharply circumscribed in their campaigning activities, presumably because of the absence of campaign funds. Their candidates are reporting the lightest expense accounts of any now running in expense statements filed with the secretary of state.

Aside from two visits from William and a recent speech in Wisconsin by Henry A. Wallace, vice presidential candidate on the Roosevelt ticket, the chief political personalities in the Wisconsin election now closing have been Senator LaFollette, Julius P. Heil, Fred Clausen, LaFollette's sturdy challenger, and Orland S. Loomis, the party man chosen by the Progressives to attempt the job of removing Heil from the governor's office.

LaFollette's campaign has been characterized by a heavy discussion of foreign affairs, his opposition to American entrance into the European war, and a belligerent attack on the Republican state administration, presumably to aid Loomis.

LaFollette in the last week has issued repeated challenges to his Republican rival, Clausen, to elaborate on his stand on foreign questions. That his pledge against war is construed as the principal bulwark of his political appeal is revealed in the current issue of the LaFollette family's newspaper, in which the editor notes with satisfaction that "audiences roared their approval when Bob LaFollette said with solemn earnestness:

"I have made a solemn pact with the mothers and fathers of Wisconsin and America that I will never vote to send a single American boy overseas to shed his blood or give his life. This is a pledge that I will keep with every honorable means at my disposal, no matter what the consequences to myself."

Attacks New Deal
Clausen for his part has divided his attention between LaFollette's record and the spending and business regulating policies of the New Deal. New Deal continuation spells national bankruptcy and ruin, he has cried, as he denounced LaFollette for supporting those features of the Roosevelt administration which he deprecates, and for outdistancing Roosevelt in some "radical proposals."

Despite the fact that he won a comfortable endorsement in the primary election which forecast a relatively easy general election campaign, Julius Heil has taken nothing for granted. He has matched the ardor of his Progressive opponent in hobnobbing with the voters in city and crossroads town all over Wisconsin. In his characteristic homespun style, Governor Heil has related what he deems his achievements in the state government, the application of brakes to the "gravy train," economy, state personnel firing, reorganization, and other deeds.

Loomis, with the assistance of his state ticket and party leader Phil LaFollette, has burned up the public roads assailing the record of the Heil regime, pointing to the historically high state budget, to increased state taxation, to alleged broken promises, to highway diversion and "demoralization" of state employees.

Aiding and abetting their efforts, rival political headquarters in recent weeks have been furious beehives of activity. Chairman J. K. Kyle and L. F. Gullickson directed respective Progressive and Republican headquarters offices in the capital city, while Chairman Thomas King was in charge of the Milwaukee state office of the Democratic party.

Most political observers thus far have credited Senator LaFollette with a better chance for reelection than Orland S. Loomis, principally because of the fact that LaFollette has been publicly approved by the Roosevelt administration, while Loomis has a strong Democratic opponent, besides Heil, in Francis E. McGovern. Conversely, most amateur forecasters predict that Heil's election will be easier to achieve than that of his running-mate, Clausen.

In the Good Old Days

Were they the "good" old days?

The "light bill" of those days covered electric lighting and little else.

The electric service bill of today. In addition to lighting, may include refrigeration, cooking, water heating, operation of vacuum cleaners, fans, electric heaters, radios, clocks, razors, washing machines, ironers, toasters, coffee makers or similar appliances.

The electric service bill of today covers the cost of drudgery-free electrical living and not just lighting alone.

County to Send Five Young Men In First Draft

Wilde Reveals Quota; Conscripts Will Begin Training Next Month

Outagamie county will furnish five men of the 278 from Wisconsin called for the first draft, according to an announcement made today by Walter J. Wilde, state selective service director at Madison.

The figure conforms with estimates made when the quotas for each of the four inclination areas in the state were announced earlier this week.

The Appleton district will probably furnish two in the county quota, the second district (Little Chute) two, and the third district (Stevensville) one.

Outagamie county is one of 18 in the Wisconsin inclination area which have been asked to provide 45 of the 278 Wisconsin draftees. Of these 18 counties, Florence is the only one in the area or in the state which will not provide a man for service.

Quotas for the other 16 counties in the Wisconsin area are as follows: Marathon, 6; Wood, 4; Shawano, Waupesa, Clark, Marinette, Portage, 3 each; Ashland, Langlade, Lincoln, Oconto, Oneida, Price, 2 each; Forest, Iron, Vilas, one each.

Leading all counties is Milwaukee, with a quota of 68 men. Seven will be drawn from Winnebago county with three from the third district and two each from Districts 1 and 2.

The first contingent of conscripts will be inducted into service for a year Nov. 22 to 29.

The Appleton district and the second district boards met in the Irving Zuelke building last night to make preparations for assigning draft numbers after the master lists have been received from Washington. The three county boards, which will have headquarters in the Zuelke building, will go to work on the master lists Monday.

Cloudy Sunday, Is Prediction

Rain Is Forecast for State Monday; Reading This Morning Is 45

Increasing cloudiness Sunday, with rain probable Monday, is the forecast for Appleton and vicinity issued today by the weatherman.

Today's weather was cloudy, but suitable for football. The thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building stood at 45 degrees this forenoon.

For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 50 at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and the lowest, 41, at 3 o'clock this morning, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power company records.

Highest and lowest temperatures in the nation yesterday were 88 degrees at Jacksonville, Fla., and 28 degrees at Bismarck, N. D., Cheyenne, Wyo., Huron, S. D., Pueblo, Colo., and Valentine, Neb., according to the Associated Press.

Hurja Says Its Willkie by 353 Electoral Votes

Wisconsin Is Going Republican by 187,000

Noted Analyst Predicts

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—Wendell Willkie is leading the presidential race in Wisconsin by 187,000 votes, according to an announcement today of the results of a public opinion poll conducted by Emil Hurja, owner of the Pathfinder Publishing Company who in former years was vice chairman of the Democratic National committee.

Hurja's polls was Jim Farley's political analyst in previous years and predicted with a high degree of accuracy the outcome of the presidential elections of 1932 and 1936.

President Roosevelt had a plurality of 422,156 votes in Wisconsin in 1936, so that Hurja's estimate shows a radical swing away from the New Deal in that state.

Willkie has the support of 29 states and 353 electoral votes, Hurja's present poll indicates. Roosevelt, therefore, has but 19 states and 178 electoral votes, according to this survey.

A previous poll published by Hurja October 26 showed Willkie with the support of 23 states and 400 electoral votes, and Roosevelt with 25 states and 231 electoral votes.

The "key states" of Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania are all for Willkie, Hurja believes. He gives the Republican presidential candidate a plurality of 170,000 votes in Illinois, 111,636 in New York and 147,200 in Pennsylvania. In 1936, Roosevelt carried these states by 12,606 votes in Illinois, 1,100,000 in New York and 663,488 in Pennsylvania.

The poll ascribes 10 of the 19 states, said to be for Roosevelt, to the "solid south."

Lescohier is a nationally known authority on economics and is especially versed in the field of labor. Besides faculty positions with a number of leading colleges and universities, he has been employed as labor consultant for several large corporations.

Straw Vote Will Be Taken at High School on Monday

Polls will open at 8:15 Monday morning at Appleton High school and students will have an opportunity to cast a straw vote on national, state and county officers. Election committees of three will be appointed in each social science class and these committees will supervise the elections in their rooms and tabulate the results before submitting them to the central board.

The regular voting machinery has been duplicated as nearly as possible. No student will be allowed to vote who has not registered by 3:45 this afternoon. Results of the straw vote will be determined Monday afternoon when the ballots are counted by the central election committee.

Social science instructors of the high school are spending additional time this week discussing the campaign issues and the candidates, since this election is considered one of the most critical since 1861. Campaigning is being limited to the classroom as far as it is possible.

Speakers Give Party Views Before Women

Candidates' Records Outlined in Talks At Voters' Meeting

Representatives of three political parties told the Appleton League of Women Voters their views on the two presidential candidates and gave the reason for backing their parties Thursday night in city hall.

Congressman Joshua L. Johns lashed at President Roosevelt's foreign policy and said: "I'll resign from congress before I will ever vote to send our boys to fight on foreign soil."

Speaking for the Democrats, Mrs. J. C. Pryor, director of the women's division of the party in the mid-west, told why she believed in President Roosevelt. She defended the administration's spending as necessary and then quoted statistics to show that the country is in better condition than it was in 1929.

The opposite views were expressed by Miss LaTourette Stockwell, instructor in English at Lawrence college, who represented the Republicans. Miss Stockwell argued against a third term and charged that President Roosevelt's bid for third term is a trend towards dictatorship.

Compares Convention She compared the Democratic and Republican conventions and the methods used to nominate Wendell Willkie and President Roosevelt. She recalled the president's attempt to control the supreme court and his attempt to purge the Democratic party of senators and representatives who were not New Dealers.

E. N. Robinson, a Progressive adviser to Senator LaFollette, gave his reasons for being a Progressive. He said the Progressive party is the party of the future and is moving with the times.

Congressman Johns, in his address, talked mainly about conscription and war issues. He reminded the audience that under the conscription act, the president has the power to call young men into service at any time.

He maintained that the volunteer system would have furnished enough men to take care of immediate needs and would have prevented any upset in the economic system.

After his talk, an open forum was conducted with the congressmen answering the questions advanced by the women voters who were vitally interested in conscription. The women also asked about the national debt. Johns explained the financial status of the nation by reporting that the government was spending the taxpayers' money at the rate of $25,000,000 per day of which $11,000,000 was being borrowed.

Americans Have Big Task Ahead, Senator States

Defense and Domestic Problems Come First, LaFollette Says Here

America has the power and the will to deal with any crisis that might confront it, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, candidate for reelection on the Progressive ticket, told a crowd last night at Eagles hall, declaring: "I am unadulterably opposed to the United States fighting in any war in Europe, Africa, or Asia."

America has two great responsibilities before it, he said, the first to rearm "so efficiently that no power or combination of powers can endanger it," and the second to turn its attention to domestic problems, the most salient of which are the country's youth, unemployment, and assistance for the old-age group that is not able to support itself.

The greatest service this country can perform, Senator LaFollette said, is "to seize its opportunities and to keep aloft the lamp of liberty, tolerance, and democracy in the world. . . Democracy is not a self-perpetuating institution. It's a human institution that can only have the vitality that men and women are willing to give it."

"This is no time for hysteria. We must not fritter away our opportunities. Democracy has the ability to cope with problems. . . But we must work for democracy."

Wisconsin's senior senator asserted that the Republican state administration of Governor Julius P. Heil had defaulted "on all but one or two of its 20 some platform planks of 1936."

Reading the platform in the 1940 Wisconsin blue book, Senator LaFollette took many of the promises made by the Republicans in 1936 and held them up as merely empty campaign slogans that were never carried out.

"I believe that a political platform is in the nature of a contract between the candidate and the voter whose support he seeks."

He said that the Heil administration has pushed Wisconsin 12 million dollars "in the red" and predicted that by July, 1941, "the state will have to dig down to pay this deficit; if the present administration is returned to power, the Republicans will pass a general sales tax."

A sales tax, LaFollette said, is contrary to the Progressive conception of fair taxation. It does not exact levies on the basis of ability to pay, but strikes hardest at the low-income groups that spend a far greater proportion of its earnings on necessities.

Among the Republican campaign promises which LaFollette read from the 1936 campaign and his answers to them:

Promised not to appoint members of the legislature to state offices and denounced the practice.

The senator recalled that Governor Heil made three appointments from the legislature during the last session.

School Aid Cut Promised more school aid. Senator LaFollette declared that school aid in Wisconsin has been cut $100,000 annually.

LaFollette charged that whenever the Heil administration discharged "a few state employees," the govern-

Kohler Man Arrested At Waupesa Friday Morning, Pays $40

Waupesa — En route to his home in Kohler, Wis., from Stevens Point Friday morning, A. I. Verhulst, 40, was arrested by Chief of Police J. Paul Jones for drunken driving. Johnson he pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a fine of $40 and costs.

Kaukauna Man Hurt In Traffic Accident

Joseph Casey, 26, 115 1/2 E. Second street, Kaukauna, is in St. Elizabeth hospital with a possible hip fracture after an automobile accident about 1 o'clock last night on a town road a mile west of Little Chicago.

Casey was a passenger in a car driven by Clarence Kiffce, 20, 706 Metoxen avenue, Kaukauna. Police were told the car plunged into the ditch at the dead end of the town road. Kiffce and another passenger, Cyril West, 24, Lave street Kaukauna, were uninjured.

or "press secretary" immediately informed newspapers about it. But when additional employees were hired, it was not made a subject for the public print. The senator charged that the present Republican administration in Wisconsin has an average of 400 more people on the state payroll than during the last Progressive administration.

Michael F. Kresky, Progressive candidate for congress from the Eighth district, talked briefly at the meeting. He said he would resist "with every ounce of energy within me" any attempt to send American soldiers abroad to fight. America, Kresky said, "must hold tight to the social and economic gains we have already made." Kresky was introduced by Mary C. Schneider, sister of the late Congressman George Schneider.

T. E. McGullan, county Progressive chairman, presided at the meeting at which county and state Progressive candidates were introduced.

BIOLOGY QUESTIONS

Recently an 11-year-old girl named Kitty Newton came to my studio and with her she brought a list of 15 questions. All of the questions had something to do with Kitty's biology work in seventh grade. Kitty wrote down the answers I gave her. At the end of her interview, I asked her to give me a copy of the questions, so I might answer the more interesting ones in Saturday talks.

"What does the dragonfly use its 'needle' for?" was one question. The so-called 'needle' of a dragonfly is its body. The shape of the body has given this insect the nickname of "darning needle," but it doesn't darn or sew.

Dragonflies are in no way harmful to human being. In fact they are useful to us, since they destroy harmful insects. They capture mosquitoes, gnats and flies, and eat them.

"Does the porcupine shoot its quills at you?" was another question.

No, the porcupine doesn't shoot its quills at anyone. If a person tries to touch this animal when its quills are bristling out, there is likely to be trouble. The quills are barbed and come out easily.

Now and then an observer has seen quills come loose from the wagging tail of a porcupine, but that could hardly be called "shooting."

"Do squirrels migrate in droves?" Not as a rule. There is no yearly migration of squirrels from north to south, or from south to north. Most squirrels spend their lives in a small space, perhaps not wandering more than half a mile from the nest.

In a few cases, however, squirrels have been seen to migrate in large numbers. Several events of this kind were observed during the past century. The reason no doubt was to find woodlands with a better supply of food.

"Where do groundhogs live in winter and what do they eat in winter?"

In cold winter weather, groundhogs sleep all, or most, of the time in their holes or burrows. They seldom eat anything, having grown fat before winter came. A food supply of dried grass may be found in some burrows, but the usual thing is for a groundhog to eat little, if anything.

Marion and Kimberly Tie When Each Scores on Blocked Punt

Kimberly — Playing in a sea of mud and water, Marion and Kimberly high gridders played to a dramatic 6 to 6 tie score under the lights Friday night. The inclement weather kept the crowd down to about 500, but the home fans saw a finish put on by the Papermakers that left no doubt in their minds that this team has what it takes. The high school band pepped things up in fine style with four baton twirlers doing their tricky stuff.

The first quarter ended in a scoreless tie and the teams were covered with mud and wet from head to toe. The players were hardly recognizable to the crowd and the wet ball caused numerous fumbles.

Marion advanced the ball to their own 35 in the second period and on third down kicked to Kimberly's 20 where it was downed. The Papermakers could not dent the line and Gaffney's kick was blocked, being recovered on the Papermakers' 6 by Marion. Three plays gained three yards and on fourth down Draeger shot a short pass over the line to Meyer in the end zone to score. Draeger tried to pass for the extra point but was smothered.

Twice later the Papermakers were on Marion's 20 but wet footing spelled disaster.

1st add Marion and Kimberly 213 S. In the final quarter, and with only a few minutes to go, the team began to roll and with Irish Gaffney barking the signals scored four successive first downs to Marion's 25 yard line. With the ball on the Pigeons' 16 and a yard to go, the Papermakers again lost possession on fourth down. On two plays Marion lost six and then elected to kick with a half minute remaining. The ball was fumbled in the end zone with Vincent Vanden Boogaard recovering for the Papermakers.

Gaffney's try for placement spun off the side of his foot but no one blamed Dab for missing in the sea of mud.

The papermakers go to Omro next Wednesday for a game under the lights. It probably will end the current season for the papermakers.

In the other game last night, Oshkosh lost to Fond du Lac by a 7 to 0 margin.

Dutchmen to Play Marines

Little Chute Team At Sturgeon Bay for Tomorrow's Battle

Little Chute—The Flying Dutchmen football team will journey to Sturgeon Bay Sunday to meet the strong Cherryland Marines, independent semi pro gridders, in the first of a home and home series. The Marines boast a great aggregation, according to Bill Eickelberg, manager and backer, and hold a win over Two Rivers and a number of northern teams. The local game will be Nov. 10.

The Dutchmen may be without the services of Allen Duffett, star halfback, who was injured at Ironwood, Mich., Sunday. Roger Koehn also has an injured shoulder but more of the players will be in uniform for Sunday, among them Al Boots, plunging fullback, Ed Eiting, end, Doc Hartjes, halfback, and Pete Van Lankfelt and Al Marx, linemen. The rest of the squad includes George Wassenberg, Bill Jahneke, Joey Versteeg, Johnny Ellrick, Al Duffett, Whitey Baeten, Les Hoff, Smoky Van Boxtel, Ginny Van Grisen, Hank Van Lankfelt, Ralph Mueller, Nubs Jensen, Roger Koehn, Flash Lamers, Red Boots and Marty Wyngaard. Lost to the squad are Becker Lenz at camp with Co. D. Perp Wynboom and Dick De Bruin.

The game at Little Chute on Nov. 10 will be a benefit affair for De Bruin who has been disabled for the past three weeks with a bad leg injury. The Marines will be the Dutchmen's opponents.

The squad will leave Little Chute Chute at 10 a. m. in cars and all players are asked to be on time for departure.

Minnesota and Wildcats Put Records on Line

Each Has Four Wins; 48,000 Expected to Witness Struggle

Evanston, Ill. —(U)—Two of the nation's finest football teams—Minnesota and Northwestern—put their undefeated and untied records on the line today in the outstanding grid attraction of the country.

Each has won four impressive victories. The winner today will take over first place in the Western conference and earn added prestige in national rankings.

Northwestern has been a tough customer for Minnesota in recent years. In 1938 the Wildcats stopped Minnesota's victory streak at 21. Two years ago when the Gophers won the conference title Northwestern was the only league team to defeat them. Last season Northwestern again conquered the Northmen.

Northwestern faces the massive eleven from Minneapolis with several boys on the injured list, including Bill de Corveant who still is limping slightly from an ankle sprained two weeks ago.

Today's battle, before a capacity crowd of 48,000, is a pivotal contest in the conference race. Both have a game remaining with undefeated Michigan. The outcome of these three games will determine the league champion.

New York —(U)—Army versus Notre Dame, a game that can't help being a major event no matter how the teams look against other rivals, drew some 78,000 fans to Yankee Stadium today.

Off the records, Notre Dame appeared able to win as it pleased but 26 previous games in this series have proved that the records don't always mean much. The Cadets would rather win this game than any other except the climactic tussle with Navy and they were out to do it with a team that resembled only a little the Army team of early season.

Most notable change was the nomination of four sophomores as backfield starters. Notre Dame's first stringers were scheduled to start but Coach Elmer Layden was expected to give his reserves plenty of work if the score should become lopsided.

Norman, Okla. —(U)—Favored Nebraska and underdog Oklahoma, only unbeaten teams in the big six conference grid campaign, meet today in a battle that may go a long way toward settling the title chase. The game brings together two of the season's finest backfield performers—Jack Jacobs of Oklahoma and Herman Rohrig of Nebraska.

The Sooners have not lost a home game since 1937. Their last conference defeat was by Nebraska last year.

Philadelphia —(U)—Shaking off last week's defeat by Michigan, Pennsylvania's football team went after a fresh start today against the undefeated Navy squad. It was navy's strong defense, accurate passing and plentiful reserves against Penn's great running and kicking. Each team was slightly handicapped by injuries. Irving Mendelson, star Penn guard, was a doubtful starter while Navy couldn't use Jack Harrell, big blocking back.

Ithaca, N. Y. —(U)—Cornell's football team sought to preserve its unbeaten-untied record against Columbia today in its last home game of the season but the Lions had no idea of being turned into lambs for a slaughter. Recalling last year when Columbia caught the Big Red team in a slump and was beaten by only one touchdown, the Lions hoped that this year's greatly improved squad would show a corresponding improvement in the score.

Iowa City, Ia. —(U)—Approximately 40,000 homecoming fans were expected here today to watch Iowa and Purdue settle a Western conference football dispute.

The Boilermakers hoped to crack a two-game conference losing streak and also gain revenge for a 4 to 0 defeat by the Hawkeyes last fall. Iowa has lost two in a row but has a decision over Wisconsin, 14 to 13 victor over Purdue last week.

Columbus, Ohio —(U)—The thrice-defeated Ohio State Buckeyes and Indiana Hoosiers clash today in a Western conference gridiron scrap expected to attract 47,000 spectators to Ohio stadium. The contest is the 25th between the two schools, with Ohio holding a 14 to 7 edge in games won and with three ties in the record.

Madison —(U)—Wisconsin gridmen match their passing attack and the line-smashing ability of Fullback George Paskvan against the speed and deception of Illinois in a Western conference football game today. A homecoming day crowd of 30,000 will be on hand to cheer the Badgers' try for their second conference victory.

Chief Work Hard

Milwaukee —(U)—The Milwaukee Chiefs drilled four hours in the rain yesterday and served notice on the Bospor Bears that they were in for anything but a tea party Sunday at state fair park.

The Chiefs knocked the Boston team out of the American Professional Football league leadership last week and hope to ring up another victory tomorrow.

Parade Opens Homecoming

St. John Students Hold Bonfire, Pep Meeting Friday Night

Little Chute — Their spirit undampened by rain, St. John high students opened their homecoming weekend last night with a huge parade featuring floats. It wound through the main district and ended at the park. Although the field was a muddy mess, a record turnout witnessed burning in effigy of Keshena high which will be the opponent of the local gridders Sunday afternoon in the homecoming game, and the pep meeting around the bonfire could be seen for miles around. After the drenching of an all day rain, the bonfire was expected to be canceled but after igniting the debris, the water didn't have much effect on the pile which burned merrily.

The junior class won first place in the contest for the best float. It was a huge woodenshoe and a slogan "Dutchmen's wings of victory." The seniors also had a beautiful float which had a king and queen on a throne with a St. John high griddler on his knees being knighted. The slogan was "Knighting the Conqueror." The freshmen displayed a ship with a slogan, "Cruising to Victory," while the sophomores showed a broken down auto labeled Keshena.

Sunday's homecoming game should be attended by a record crowd after all the pep shown by the students. The game means a lot to the Dutchmen as victory will keep the locals perched on top in the Catholic conference race.

Sunday's opening kickoff will be at 2:15.

The homecoming celebration will come to a close Sunday evening with a dance at St. John gymnasium. It is sponsored by the alumni association, and athletic club.

GRIDIRON GRINS

It was the Georgia Tech-Centre game of 1920, a bitterly fought contest. Tech boasted an All-America tackle in Bill Fincher, who had one glass eye, and as tough a football frame as ever graced a gridiron. Centre featured the mighty Bo McMillan and Red Roberts, the latter alternating at fullback and end.

The game began and Fincher traveled over Roberts' prone figure to throw McMillan for a loss, on the first play. The second play Fincher repeated. Coach Moran yanked Roberts and barked "What's the matter with you?"

"Coach," raged Roberts, "that guy ain't human. He's like nothing I've ever seen in my life. When we lined up to play he reached back in his shirt and pulled out an old, dirty handkerchief. Then he pulled one eye out and rolled it up in that old handkerchief and put his eye in his shirt. When he took his hand out he had a big plug of tobacco. He bit off a chunk, rolled it around in his check and asked me:

"Are you going to play square?"

"Before I had time to answer, he called the signals, and that gorilla spit tobacco juice in my eye and I ain't seen him since!"

Chicago—Divisional races in the National Football league reach the show-down stage tomorrow with the crippled Green Bay Packers battling the mighty Chicago Bears and a hardy band of New York Giants hazarding an invasion of Brooklyn.

Two other contests round out the day's schedule. Pittsburgh ventures into Washington to meet the unbeaten Redskins and Detroit goes to Cleveland to complete its season's series with the Rams. But interest in the afternoon's activity will center in Chicago and Brooklyn where the Packers, Dodgers and Giants all will be fighting to remain within striking distance of playoff berths.

A capacity crowd of 40,000 is expected to see the Packers and Bears clash for the 44th time in the oldest rivalry in professional football. The Giant-Dodger game has been sold out for several weeks.

Green Bay sets forth on the task of preventing the Bears from virtually clinching their first division championship since 1937 with two key men ailing and three other valuable players definitely out of action. Center George Svendsen, Full Back Eddie Jankowski and Half Back Joe Laws are lost with knee injuries. Cecil Isbell has been sick and Clark Hinkle, veteran full back, suffered an accident, his back in last week's 24 to 3 victory over Pittsburgh.

Packers Seek Reveng
The Packers have operated successfully against the Bears with greater handicaps in other seasons, however, and are confident they can avenge the 41 to 10 humiliation suffered at the hands of the Chicagoans on Sept. 22, despite the fact that the Bears appeared to be the greatest team in football history last week when they overpowered the Giants, 37 to 21, with 30 points in the first 25 minutes.

The Packers, with a record of 18 triumphs and 4 ties against 21 defeats in the Bear series, must win if they are to remain in the running for their third consecutive division title. A Bear victory will make it necessary for the Chicagoans to win only two of their four remaining games—against Detroit, Washington, Cleveland and the Cardinals—to finish in a tie if either Green Bay or Detroit sweeps the rest of its schedule. On the basis of their recent showings, this is not a great deal to ask of the Bears.

Brooklyn and the Giants find themselves in the same position as the Packers. Each has suffered two defeats, one apiece by the Bears. Another will leave the loser too far behind unbeaten Washington to have any reasonable hope of reaching the playoff, even though the Redskins have yet to face the Bears, Giants and Brooklyn.

Redskins Tough
Washington, with six consecutive victories, including a 40 to 10 conquest of the Steelers, increased its growing prestige last week by defeating a well balanced Detroit team without a touchdown pass by Sammy Baugh. Defying one of the league's outstanding defenses, the Redskins sprang loose Dick Todd and Jimmy Johnston on 60 and 66 yard touchdown runs. This is the type of attack the luckless Steelers will be called upon to contend with tomorrow. It is a job no club resembles, but Pittsburgh is stuck with it.

Cleveland, yanked back into the cellar by the Cardinals last week, will attempt to escape at the expense of the Lions while the Cardinals are idle. Detroit, victorious, 6 to 0, in a previous meeting with the Rams, will be seeking to move above the 500 mark to which it descended last week when it went down before Washington for its third defeat of the season.

Philadelphia is not scheduled.

Team Captained by Stuart Ramsey Is Leading in Grid Loop

Stuart Ramsey's team has the top position in the 6-man football tournament in the first hour gym classes at Appleton High school. He and his men are credited with four wins and one tie. Runners-up are Henry Van Actmuel, Carlton Weickert and Arnold Van Dinter.

In the second period group, Deris Kloes is in the lead with six victories and one defeat. Maurice Griesbach, Harold Mullen and Clem Unmuth follow in the order mentioned. Stan Beschta's team is at the top in the third period. He is Coca (1).

Francis Hoffman and his team mates are the winners in the fourth hour tournament. They top the squads of Ralph Dingeldein, Mick Badger (1), Joe McGuire, Joe McKel, John Jacobs, Harvey Reinhold, John Rouse and James Miller. The same teams will play soccer in the next rounds.

A. Knaus and J. Sandhofer Lead Elks League Bowlers

Alex Knaus, carrying a 25-pin handicap, cracked a 250 game and J. Sandhofer, carrying 23 pins, hit a 648 series for top individual marks during Big Ten league matches at Elks alleys last night. Team honors went to Wisconsin with a 1,004 game and Michigan with a 2,865 total.

Michigan won three games from Northwestern to go into a tie for first place with Illinois, the latter dropping a game to Minnesota. Other high individual scores, handicaps included, were W. Gillette 220-665, F. Johnston 225, W. Plamann 213 208 201-622, J. Sandhofer 215 212-648, A. Knaus 250-600, C. Waggoner 239, W. Fries 225 226-643, W. Schultz 229 234-640.

Giordana Tops N.E.W. Scorers

Has 55 Points With Conference Season Over; Alger Second

Sturgeon Bay — Carl Giordana, Kaukauna captain, finished up the season in the Western division of the Northwestern Wisconsin conference last week with a total of 55 points on seven touchdowns and 13 extra points. Billy Reed, of Shawano, will require at least two touchdowns and three extra points when and if his team meets Clintonville and New London. Shawano-High now is closed because of infantile paralysis.

These two players were much more prolific scorers last season when Reed set a conference record with 89 points and Giordana got 71. Reed then had 13 touchdowns for his credit for a record. This year Giordana's 13 extra points set a new high mark.

Second place this week is held by Bill Alger, Kaw and who accepts so many Giordana passes, with 43 points, and the rest of the field is bunched far behind.

Menasha — Menasha High school gridders rolled over New London High school, 14 to 6, for a Northwestern Wisconsin conference victory Friday night at Butte des Morts field. The Bluejays victory was even more decisive than the score for the Jays piled up 14 first downs to 6 for the Bulldogs. They moved inside the New London 25-yard line five times but fumbled and pass interceptions ended their threats. New London got across the midfield stripe only three times.

The Bulldogs started impressively, driving from their 20 to the Menasha 49 on first downs to the Poepeke and Pies. There New London attempted a pass and Robinson intercepted to start the Jays rolling. A penalty on New London helped them to one first down. O'Brien went 12 yards for the next one. He added 14 more yards in two runs. He gained nine more and Robinson picked up the first down on a sneak to the 4. Nantke made three and Wideman went over. O'Brien added the point.

New London received and was tossed back on two plays. On third down Robinson broke through to block a punt and W. Thompson recovered on the 17. On fourth down O'Brien attempted a field goal that missed. New London fumbled on the second play and Menasha recovered on the 29. Four downs into the line made it first on the 16. Three plays gained five yards and Bodoh intercepted a fourth down pass to the end zone. He returned to the 12 and New London made a first with the aid of another penalty before punting.

Recover Fumble
Wideman returned the kick to the New London 49 and then gained eight yards. O'Brien made it first. A penalty nullified a gain and John Baldauf tossed a forward to Wideman for 17 yards. Robinson lobbed a short pass to Wipich for another first down on the 7 but Wideman fumbled and New London recovered on the three. The Bulldogs tried one pass before the half ended.

The Jays partially blocked another kick with the ball going out on the 36 after the second half opened. O'Brien made 15 but Sullivan recovered a Menasha fumble. New London fumbled and lost four yards. Pues ran 21 yards from punt formation and was stopped by Wideman. The last Menasha player in his way New London fumbled on second down and Menasha recovered.

Wideman went through the line for 14 yards. O'Brien passed to Wipich who immediately lateraled to Marrell for a first down on the 21. O'Brien made six. Wideman was dropped for a loss, two offside penalties offset each other and Wideman powered through the line for a first down on the nine. He added three more and Nantke drove the last six yards on a spinner. O'Brien again kicked the point.

46-Yard Run
Freiburger gained seven yards and Weber added enough for a first down after the kickoff before the Bulldogs tried three passes, that were stopped and then punted. The teams traded pass interceptions with Menasha ending with the ball on their 25. They had to punt and Pues returned 14 yards. He broke away for a 46 yard run and was hauled down from behind by Armin Weber on the 15. The Jays were penalized half the distance to the goal.

Pues gained four and another play was stopped. An offside set the Bulldogs back to the eight and Freiburger hit the line for three. On fourth down Pues went around right end for the touchdown after a double lateral from Poepeke to Freiburger. Pues missed the attempt for the point.

Menasha regulars went back into the game, took the kickoff and drove to the New London 14 before the first ended. O'Brien accounted for one first down but New London fumbled. J. Bodoh fumbled a high kick as the Menasha ended rushed in on him and John Sheleski recovered. O'Brien and Weber drove to the 11 when the final horn sounded.

Steve Belloise Loses but Makes Great Showing

Youngster Floors Overlin, Then Lets Champion Get Away

BY GAYLE TALBOT

New York — (U) — Slim young Steve Belloise still doesn't own a single one of the various middle-weight boxing titles, but the boy from the Bronx staked a claim on one in his losing fight against wily Ken Overlin in the Garden last night.

For a 21-year-old engaging in only his 33rd bout, Steve made a great showing against the veteran who holds the 160-pound crown (New York and California variety), and the crowd of 13,000 rewarded him by booing the verdict for a good five minutes.

The youngster knocked Overlin down with a terrific right in the sixth round when he gave the champ an awful going-over. But he punched himself out, let Overlin get away and recover, and in the end the decision was the only one possible.

Promoter Mike Jacobs liked Steve's fight so well that he crowded into the dressing room to offer him another shot at Overlin. Steve was more than willing, but Chris Dundee, Overlin's manager, said he wanted time to think it over.

And well he might. The referee last night thought Belloise earned a draw. The two judges, however, voted for Overlin, one of them awarding him 11 rounds to Steve's four.

Overlin, this time, was just a little too cute for Belloise. Whether he will be six months from now is doubtful.

Overlin made him look like a sap for rounds at a time, but the Bronx boy never became discouraged and never ceased to be dangerous. As late as the 12th round he caught Overlin a couple that staggered the veteran.

Overlin looked like a pouter in the sixth. When he hopped right up without taking a count after being clipped, he ran into terrible punishment. Belloise must have measured him with 30 clean shots on the jaw as he reeled around, helpless. But he couldn't go down again, and with 30 seconds of the round still to go Belloise suddenly ran out of steam. That was his last chance.

Beloit Winner Over Grinnell

Remains in Thick of Midwest Conference Football Scramble

Beloit — (U) — Beloit remained in the thick of the Midwest conference football race by defeating Grinnell 6 to 0 last night.

It was the first league loss for the Indians, who were helpless against the strong Beloit forward wall.

Beloit dominated play throughout but was unable to score until midway in the last quarter, when a 24-yard sprint by Griffith touched off a drive that carried deep into Grinnell territory. Thomas planned for the touchdown, but French's place kick was wide.

Beloit held the edge in first downs 13 to 4.

Dempsey in New Role; He's Labor Arbitrator

New York — (U) — Jack Dempsey has stepped into a new role—that of labor arbitrator.

Appointed by Supreme Court Justice J. Sidney Bernstein, the former heavyweight boxing champion yesterday decided a dispute between the American Federation of Employees and the Neo-gravure Printing company.

The award granted the union a 10 per cent wage increase and a 40-hour week, but vetoed a demand for absolute seniority in dismissals.

Leaders of the AFL organization nailed the ruling as proof that Dempsey was "not only a great fighter but a great arbitrator." The company reserved comment pending a study of the decision.

The DOG OWNER and HIS DOG

BY ALLAN KERR
Many a gifted pen has paid tribute to the dog, but while these eulogies might be rhetorical gems, few have set down the dog's most concrete benefit to man during a decade of hard times in America—the jobs at living wages provided for a million and a half men and women. Food constitutes the largest item, according to figures collected by the American Kennel club, but "man's best friend" provides work for man in many industries.

It is a curious fact that in this same ten years of depression and world unrest, purebred dogs and dogs in general have had their greatest increase. The probable reason for this is that in times of trouble we turn to friends—and the dog has been a friend of man since the days when they both lived in caves.

The tremendous increase in shows, field trials, and obedience tests in recent years is the result of man's close association with the dog—not the reason for it. Originally, the dog hunted with man for the food which they shared. Later, dog helped for sport. Dog shows and field trials started about the time when man's hunting began to be restricted and he still wanted to enjoy himself with his dog. Field trials are now held right during the hunting seasons, and they are well attended and attract big entries.

That a dog can be both amateur trainer and handled, and still furnish hot competition for the top-notch pro trained entries was clearly demonstrated at the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial club of Illinois stakes run at Waukegan on Oct. 12-13. L. Leader, Milwaukee, placed his "home trained" Lady Penwin first in the Amateur All Age, leaving Field Trial Champion Altkesh Grant, owned by D. Siderman, Chicago, in second place. He then copped the shooting dog stake right handily against a big field.

Sonny Lad, owned by Dr. W. B. Marcussen, Oak Park, Ill., and handled by Martin Hogan, placed first in the puppy stake. Second went to Jane H. Bonnie, owned by Ray Larson, Dundee, Ill.

As usual, the open all age stake brought out the stiffest contest. It was won by the well known F. T. Champion Cloverdale Zipper, owned by C. B. Dushane, Jr., Chicago, and handled by Cliff Wallace, F. T. Champion Dalshegan Pomme de Terre, the 1938 Field and Stream trophy winner, placed second under the guidance of Martin Hogan. The dog is owned by Dr. Siderman, Chicago. There were 54 dogs entered in the trials.

Golden retrievers clamped on to both first and second places in the Midwest Field Trials club's Chicago trials Oct. 4-5. First went to F. T. Champion Rip, owned and handled by Paul Blakewell III, and winner of last year's Field and Stream trophy. Second place was won by Binky of Woodend, owned by S. Nickerson, Wayzata, Minn., and handled by F. Hogan. The trials were judged by Mrs. W. Ferguson, Westport, Conn. Mrs. Ben Bolt and Art Welch of Milwaukee.

Points of Don and Jean
Have you tried raising two pups together? Don't let anyone tell you that two can live cheaper than one in this dog business. But it does seem that two make just half the noise of one, perhaps because they are young springers are growing like a phony war scare. Comparative pictures taken at six weeks and eight weeks are almost unbelievable. The diet and feeding schedule remains the same as outlined last week, but the quantity has had to be increased on numerous occasions. More next week.
